Text of Justice Black's Address
in Page 7.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Justice Hugo L. Black said tonight he once joined but later resigned from the Ku Klux Klan. He asked the nation to judge his fitness for supreme court service by his 10-year senate record.

That record "refutes every implication of racial or religious intolerance," he asserted in an unprecedented radio reply to those who have contended that Klan membership made him unworthy to serve upon the nation's highest court.

Pointedly, he castigated and disavowed any organization which seeks to limit freedom of worship, and, with equal vigor, he accused his critics of attempting, by their "campaign" against him, to "create racial and religious hatred."

Speaks From Residence.
He spoke over the radio from the modest residence of his close friend, Claude Hamilton Jr., assistant general counsel of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, while a crowd of the interested and curious, outside, brought police to the usually quiet suburban community.

In contrast with the vigorous style familiar to his senate colleagues, Black spoke deliberately as though measuring each word, stressing a phrase here, a sentence there, but always with his Alabama drawl predominant.

He indicated plainly that he has no intention of resigning from the judgeship to which he was appointed by President Roosevelt, as declared his address would be his last word on the Klan controversy.

A brief preface devoted to a declaration of devotion to the bill of rights, and its guarantees of religious freedom, brought him directly to the heart of the matter.

Commander of Salvation Army Arrives for Congress

While hands played "Dixie," General Evangeline Booth, world commander of the Salvation Army, stepped from her train at the Terminal station yesterday afternoon into the midst of a throng of approximately 4,000 people who gathered to welcome her. Making the first public appearance of her 1937 American tour in Atlanta, she will speak twice Sunday at the Georgia theater. Shown welcoming the international leader are Mayor Hartsfield, left, and Preston Arkwright, right, who headed the citizens reception committee.

Bar Adopts 'Compromise
in Controversy Caused by Black Appointment.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The assembly of the American Bar Association late today adopted a resolution calling for "full" senate hearings on the fitness of judicial nominees as a compromise to efforts for a specific expression on the Justice Black question.

Approximately an hour after the assembly acted the resolution was unanimously ratified by the association's house of delegates. The resolution made no reference to Robert Lee Tullis' efforts to have the association investigate Justice Black and his attempt to get an expression that membership in a secret, oath-bound organization is incompatible with membership in the supreme court. From the floor Tullis asserted: "It is regrettable that this as-

Crowds Pack Station To Welcome Leader on American Tour.

While the strains of "Dixie" echoed through the corridors of the Terminal station yesterday afternoon, General Evangeline Booth, world commander of the Salvation Army, stepped from her train and marched through a line of approximately 1,000 admirers who gathered to pay tribute to the international figure at the beginning of her 1937 American tour.

The vigorous 72-year-old commander, who plans to retire next year, told the group she was glad to be back in the city she last visited in 1927, "because I love the south."

Ex-Vault Star Gives Him-

He Knew Girl Was Wed.

DETROIT, Oct. 1.—(AP)—William Hawthorne, 22-year-old probationary patrolman and former collegiate pole vault star, surrendered to police today with the announcement: "I just shot my wife and another man."

Detective Lieutenant Earl Sweitzer, of the Schaefer station, said that after Hawthorne appeared, trembling and white-faced, to give himself up, officers found the bodies of 21-year-old Catherine Hawthorne and John M. Barrett, 23, at Barrett's home.

Slumped on Sofa.
Mrs. Hawthorne was slumped on a sofa. Barrett lay on the floor.

Their deaths confirmed, Hawthorne was stripped of his gun and badge, and was placed in a jail cell.

Sweitzer said "Hawthorne went to Barrett's home at noon in uniform and asked him if he knew Mrs. Hawthorne."

"According to the story as we get it, Barrett denied knowing that Mrs. Hawthorne was married. There was an argument, Barrett left to get Mrs. Hawthorne. Eventually Mrs. Hawthorne and Barrett returned together. There was more argument. Hawthorne shot them."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorne attended Michigan Normal College at Ypsilanti, where Hawthorne held state championships in the pole vault and the broad jump. They were married a year ago.

New Warnings to For-

Mediation of 3d Parties

Sharp condemnation of Japanese for the bombardment of Hankow and the Hankow-Canton railway September 25 came from Rear Admiral Harry Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet, yesterday. Admiral Yarnell denied a Japanese statement that United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson had informed the Japanese navy that all foreigners had left the area by noon, September 26.

The admiral demanded "a safe route" for evacuation of more than 1,000 Americans now in the Yangtze valley. There are thousands of other foreigners in the area, Yarnell said.

In New York, a boycott of Japanese products in America was demanded last night by Dr. Harry F. Ward, professor of Christian ethics at Union Theological Seminary, during a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden.

Meanwhile, Chinese defenders of Shanghai held their ground, even gaining in some sectors. Further warnings to foreigners to evacuate Nanking to avoid danger from air raids were reported being considered by the Japanese.

The League of Nations was asked yesterday to declare China a victim of aggression by Japan, a request which diplomats said could not be considered lightly.

Tokyo, in turn, made it plain that Japan will not stand for third party intervention.

Americans stranded at Paoting-fu, North China stronghold held by Japanese, were reported safe.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Diplomatic quarters expressed concern tonight over a report that Italy and Germany have agreed on a major offensive in Spain to give insurgent forces a victory before winter.

The reported plan was said to involve razing of Madrid by a fleet of German bombers and an offensive on the Aragon and Teruel fronts with the aid of Italian volunteers.

Diplomatic quarters said the report was that the onslaught was agreed upon by Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler in their recent talks at Berlin.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace placed before 3,000 southern farmers and agricultural leaders today a six-point permanent cotton program steering a course midway between rigid curtailment and unlimited production, and challenged his audience to array their forces in its defense to enable the cotton belt "to earn a bigger income."

"The lines are already being drawn for and against the new farm legislation which will be needed to carry out the program," he said, advising the agricultural south to unite with farmers elsewhere in seeking a new farm bill "that will serve the long-time welfare of agriculture and the nation."

The ultimate solution to the complex cotton problem, he said, lies in a continuance of a "moderate adjustment of production" such as would preserve the fer-

Group, Studying Southern Questions, Greeted Here by Chilly Rains.

By AL. HAILEY.

A misty, blowing rain yesterday greeted 138 midwestern farmers here on a tour of the south as their special train rolled into the gray recesses of Terminal station. Farmers from the midwest were momentarily baffled as they stepped from the warm railroad cars into the chilling, damp drafts sweeping the station platforms.

"So this is the 'Empire State,'" a South Dakota farmer said half-unbelievably. "You know this is the first rain we've run into on our entire trip."

Better Understanding.
The special train of farmers left Kansas City Sunday for a sweep through the south to get a look at southern farming and farmers in order to have a better understanding of farm problems facing the south.

Even though the midwestern farmers are "corn" farmers while southern planters stick by "King Cotton," problems of the two sections are mutual, an Iowa visitor reported.

"When we talk to the farmers down here, they don't say 'my' problem, they say 'our' problem," he said.

A reception committee composed of state and agricultural officials met them at the station and took charge of the entire delegation immediately.

From Montgomery, Ala., they came to Atlanta, where a stop-over of about 10 hours was planned. Most of the farmers have never been in the south before. A banquet last night was on the program arranged by the reception committee.

"The purpose of our trip," Elmer Tabor, of Spring Valley, Minn., secretary of the Midwest Agricultural committee, explained, "is to get closer to southern farmers in order that we may get their viewpoints and bring northern and southern farming together in a drive for a national agricultural program."

Soil Conservation.
"We are tickled to death with the south," he said. "Southern farmers are faced with severe problems, but this is good country. The main thing we have no-

Rivers Refuses Bid To Holy Cross Game

Governor Rivers said an engagement he had already made at home precludes his acceptance of an invitation from Governor Charles Hurley, of Massachusetts, to attend the Holy Cross-Georgia game at Boston October 16.

"I would like to make the trip, especially in view of some differences of opinion about the Georgia prison situation with Governor Hurley," Rivers said, "but I already had scheduled pre-session legislative conferences for the day of the game and the day before and my attendance at the game would force me to leave right in the middle of preparations for the session."

Semi-Nude Dancer in Fish Bowl Complicates Mr. Doyle's Love Life

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The shapely figure of a fishbowl dancer flitted backstage (apparently by proxy) tonight among other new characters in the diverting real life production of "The Loves of Jack Doyle."

Scene I of the current act consisted of denials, also by proxy, by both Doyle, the Irish troubador of fiction, and Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell Baker Godde, his very rich fiancée, of the charges contained in the alienation of affection suits filed against Mrs. Godde yesterday by...

DEATH WARNINGS PHONED LEADERS OF INVESTIGATION

Aroused Underworld Is

DOUBLE GUARD PUT OVER PROSECUTOR

'If You Enjoy Living You
Had Better Stop,' Secretary Told by Caller;
Probers Are Unworried.

An aroused underworld, fighting for its existence, has threatened the lives of Morris Ewing, foreman, and Fred J. Cooleidge Jr., secretary of the Fulton county grand jury, unless they and other members abandon the probe of bribe-taking law enforcement officers and rackets, The Constitution learned yesterday.

Ultimatums to "lay off or else" came in anonymous telephone calls to the two principals in the grand jury fight to clean up metropolitan Atlanta over a period of the past two days, but were kept a guarded secret.

Coincidentally with the knowledge of the death threats to the grand jurors, it was learned that E. E. Andrews, special prosecutor in the widespread movement to blot out organized crime, has two guards at all times and that his home is under constant protection of officers.

Andrews Guarded.
Andrews denied he has received threats, but persons close to the solicitor indicated he would not have taken such precautions unless he felt justified.

Andrews has been apprised of the threats and it was considered likely, if investigation shows the prudence of such action, that "such protection as is regarded adequate will be furnished Ewing, Cooleidge or any other member of the grand jury or law enforcement official."

To a Constitution reporter, Ewing, who at first declined to make any comment, later said: "I did not regard it as serious. I have more important things on my mind than a threat of this kind."

Mystery Call.
No law enforcement official or grand juror had any indication or clue as to who placed the mysterious telephone calls.

The person who talked to Ewing said: "Lay off this investigation or else."

Cooleidge asserted the first threat came to his home about three nights ago, and there have been subsequent calls carrying the same import. Although Ewing was not directly threatened with death, the threat was construed to mean that the Cooleidge message, however, left no room for equivocation.

It was: "If you enjoy living, you had better stop that investigation." In all instances, the caller attempted to disguise his voice. As soon as the threat was delivered, he hung up the receiver.

Still later last night, Ewing amplified his statement, saying: "Similar Threats."

"This investigation is not my responsibility alone. I am just one

RETIRING BAR HEAD EYES BLACK CLAIMS AGAINST BIGOTRY

Stinchfield Says Average Citizen Must Bow to Justice's Conclusion.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Justice Black's unprecedented radio address held up a Rudy Vallee musical show for half an hour tonight while members of the American Bar Association listened attentively and then a few, including the retiring president, made informal comment to reporters.

Several thousand lawyers among the general crowd of 12,000 in Kansas City's vast new auditorium leaned forward in their red chairs to follow each word of the speech.

Frederick H. Stinchfield, retiring president of the association, gave reporters this comment:

"A justice of the Supreme Court is necessarily more capable of determining what is the weight of the evidence and the law applicable thereto than can be a private citizen. If Mr. Justice Black says that his record in the senate far offsets the charges of bigotry resulting from the fact he belonged to the Klan the average citizen must bow to that conclusion."

"One wonders whether Mr. Justice Black was of the same opinion as to religious and racial freedom when he was a member of the Klan as when he resigned."

Ruth McHenry died in a Detroit hospital last night with a rifle bullet in her head.

Sheriff Anderson said she apparently went to her parents' Detroit home yesterday after leaving the bodies of her mother, Mrs. Adele McHenry, 45, and her 7-year-old brother, Jimmy, in the McHenry automobile parked on a country road a mile from Ann Arbor.

Another brother, Donald, 14, arrived home from school soon after the girl. He was greeted by a shot from an upstairs room, the bullet grazing his head. He ran to a neighbor for aid, then returned and found Ruth fatally shot in her room, a rifle beside her.

Justice Declares Closest Friends Have Been Jews

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The woman to whom Justice Black referred in his radio speech tonight as an inauguration day guest in his home was named recently in the senate as Mrs. H. L. Beck, of Birmingham.

Black referred in his speech to a Jewish friend who "stood so nearly in the place of a father to me that while in the army in 1918 I designated him as my Jewish friend as sole executor of my will."

He said the widow of this friend was a guest at his home for the recent inauguration of President Roosevelt and was one of the first to congratulate him on his nomination.

Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, told the senate the day after Black's confirmation that Mrs. Beck had visited the justice for the inauguration and that Black had lived with her husband. He read this congratulatory telegram:

"I have just heard of appointment and honor bestowed upon you. Congratulations. Love to all."

Georgians Give Midwestern Farmers Warm Welcome

Corn farmers of the midwest received a warm welcome at Terminal station yesterday despite a chilling rain which made the farmers think the "sunny south" is just a myth. Shown above as they met the group are, from left to right, Dean Paul W. Chapman, of the University of Georgia Agricultural College; John Spivey, president of the state senate; representing Governor Rivers; J. A. Person, Nebraska corn farmer; Elmer Taber, of Spring Valley, Minn., secretary of the Midwest Agricultural Committee, shaking hands with Mr. Spivey, and J. A. Johnson, of the University of Georgia extension service.

ticed on the tour is the need for extensive soil conservation.

Another farmer from Nebraska said that southern farming is just about the same as it is in his section—"except for the peculiar draws of the farmers." He thinks the draw is all right, however.

The farmers spent Thursday night in New Orleans. After a brief pause in Montgomery yesterday, they stopped over in Auburn, Ala., to attend a dinner in their honor. They left Atlanta at 2 o'clock this morning for Knoxville, Tenn. Other points on the return trip to Kansas City will include Chicago, Des Moines and Omaha.

Headed by Oscar Helene, of Marcus, Iowa, the midwestern farmers gathered together in Kansas City more than a week ago to discuss plans for the trip, which began Sunday.

Although the visit to the cyclorama had to be canceled because of the late arrival of the farmers, a "Georgia products" banquet was served to divert the corn men's attentions from past to present history.

Hospitality Praised.
"Southern hospitality is certainly more than a name," Jim Russell, farm editor of the Des Moines (Iowa) Register-Tribune, told the crowd. "We have always heard about 'southern hospitality'—now we can go home and tell the folks about it."

Explaining the purpose of the tour, Russell pointed out that the aim is to bring farmers of the nation closer together and to obtain a national farm program. His address followed speeches of welcome by Mayor Hartsfield, Walter C. Hendrix, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, and others. Dean Paul W. Chapman, of the University of Georgia Agricultural College, presided.

Concerted Effort.
Assurance that farmers of Georgia were ready to combine forces with the corn farmers of Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, Ohio, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Missouri, Illinois and Kansas—the states represented—in a concerted effort to better farming conditions throughout the nation was voiced by Hamilton Rawls, head of the marketing division of the State Department of Agriculture.

The reception committee meeting the delegation of farmers at Terminal station included Hamilton Rawls, John Spivey, president of the state senate, representing Governor Rivers; Walter C. Hendrix, T. C. Law, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce livestock committee; Dean Chapman; Jack Johnson, of the University of Georgia Extension Service, representing Director Walter S. Brown; George A. Dunagin, of the Federal Cotton Marketing News Service; S. D. Truitt, Fulton county agent; Whitney Tharin, University of Georgia extension editor, and others.

Roosevelt 'Fan' Wins Citizenship

SALEM, N. J., Oct. 1.—(UP)—Nicola D. Lutus, of Pennsboro, N. J., who was admitted to citizenship in naturalization court today, apparently has ideas in common with President Roosevelt.

"Who makes the laws of the country?" he was asked. "The supreme court," was the quick reply.

"Well, some people seem to think that's the correct answer," Judge S. Rusling Leap remarked.

tility of the soil and "still allow production of at least as much cotton as the markets of this and other countries have been accustomed to take."

Allotments Favored.
Urging that the world be served notice "the United States intends to keep its place in the world cotton market," he said this should be done by supplementing the market price with payments to co-operating farmers on an allotted cotton production goal, "probably financed by a moderate processing tax to avoid the difficulty of getting large subsidies from the general treasury year after year."

"The processing tax on cotton in effect under the agricultural adjustment act made the cotton programs nearly self-financing for two and a half years up to the time the supreme court nullified the tax and handed millions of dollars of tax money over to the processors," he said.

Other Points Listed.
Other points in the program would provide: Encouragement of greater consumption of cotton "in ways that would raise the standard of living of all our people," increased production of home food and feed crops; authority for loans to prevent price collapses; and, finally, authority for marketing quotas on the entire crop, to be used after a referendum of producers in time of emergency as a further protection from disaster from crushing surpluses.

He described the "processing tax as the farmer's tariff" and said "simple justice demands that the nation find some way to make up for the handicap that the tariff imposes on the south."

Wallace took cognizance of a prospective 16,000,000-bale southern crop, and a prospective 19,000,000-bale foreign crop, which he said would lead to a world crop next August of from 17,000,000 to 18,000,000 bales.

Senator Hattie W. Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, who heard the address, said the secretary appeared to be "thinking along straight lines," but there were parts of the program she wanted to study. Cully Cobb, Atlanta, former administration cotton chief, praised it as "the first official statement that definitely recogsation did not record its view, assigning as the reason that nothing could be done about the Black appointment.

"If nothing could be done something could have been said and the words of this association carry weight."

Resolution Given.
The adopted resolution read: "Resolved that the American Bar Association petition the senate of the United States to establish a rule requiring every nomination for judicial office to be referred to an appropriate committee and providing that such committee in every instance afford a full hearing upon matters touching the fitness and qualification of the nominee for the judicial office."

Floor objections to the fact the committee's substitute resolution did not specify "public" hearings on future judicial nominations were quieted when Chairman L. B. Day, of the resolutions committee, said:

"The committee through its own ignorance accidentally avoided the word 'public.' I hereby take responsibility for including that word in the substitute. It will be included."

President Named.
Arthur T. Vanderbilt—who taught night classes in Newark to work his way through law school—became head of the association today and immediately called lawyers to the task of "improving the administration of justice."

No. 1 problem confronting the bar, said the 49-year-old successor to Frederick H. Stinchfield, of Minneapolis, in his first speech to the association after taking office, is the "unparalleled growth of our administrative tribunals and the executive justice administered by them."

He referred to governmental agencies and boards which "have been called upon to take over problems which the legislatures have neither the time, the knowledge nor the technical skill to handle."

Criticizing the power centered in some administrative boards, he said, "I am concerned with one body making the rules of the game, playing the game as one of the teams and acting as umpire at the same time."

Vanderbilt was nominated to head the bar association by the house of delegates last winter. He was the only candidate.

nizes the international position the cotton producer occupies."

Steps to end "buck-passing" by agencies concerned in the handling of the 9-cent loan on the current cotton crop have been taken by the Agricultural Administration, Secretary Wallace said in a departure from his prepared address.

"With this loan, farmers who take advantage of it are able to realize at least 9 cents a pound on cotton of 7-8-inch staple and middling grade," he read from his address.

Delay Mentioned.
Putting his manuscript aside, he said he had been told since his arrival in Memphis that "confusion" and "misunderstanding" had led to delay in some quarters in getting loans.

Administration sources explained that the loan varied on different grades and staples and that some warehousemen had hesitated to guarantee classifications of cotton stored with them because of the liability involved and some government agencies functioned slowly.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 1.—If President Roosevelt is planning to run for a third term, as "most everyone in this section of the country believes, he must have been doubly encouraged by the nation-wide swing from which he now is homeward bound.

First, his public appearances have demonstrated beyond doubt that he is today as personally popular with the great rank and file of voters on the farms and in the cities as ever he was.

Second, the acute differences within the Democratic ranks, which have cropped up at every stop, have made it evident that no other candidate could hold together the diverse elements which have constituted the Roosevelt support.

Basis Disappearing.
There is still another impression that Mr. Roosevelt may have derived. This is that the condition, arising from business depression, upon which support of New Deal legislation has been based are disappearing and that he must hurry if he is to coin his personal popularity into further reforms.

For, while the President has been received with great acclaim at every stop, the same people have evinced very little interest in judicial reform, the proposed restoration of federal crop control, the wages-and-hours bill or any other of the measures debated in the last congress.

Also, the Santa Claus phase of the New Deal is fading out. The President, again and again, in his brief platform speeches, has warned that the time has come to balance the budget and that this can be done only by a sharp reduction in expenditures.

Cash and Popularity.
The local politicians frankly are doubtful whether the Roosevelt popularity will continue at its present high level as the flow of cash diminishes.

And everywhere post-depression conditions are creating new issues which are tending locally to eclipse the Roosevelt supporters. The most conspicuous of these is the labor warfare which not only is creating a division between city labor and the farmers, but has split union labor itself.

All of these elements may continue to support President Roosevelt, but, as concerns the local election which take place next year, they already are at one another's throats.

carried out with men and materials already in insurgent territory, diplomatic sources said, it would run up against firm Anglo-French determination not to tolerate an Italo-German engineered victory.

Italy Invited to Talks.
This determination apparently was the basis of the French-British resolve to get action on the volunteers issue. A note was sent to Rome tonight to invite Italy to three-party talks on this question.

It was understood that the British and French would use all their diplomacy to force the Italian-German bloc into line. If failure greeted such efforts, there was a feeling in diplomatic quarters that France might occupy parts of Spanish insurgent territory, such as the Balearic Islands off her southern coast.

Alfred T. Benton, one of the six process servers who camped on Mrs. Godde's doorstep until early this morning. He spoke French to Mrs. Godde's French butler, got him to open the door and then he said, served the summons in Miss Allen's suit.

Bac-Sco's statement for his friends was emphatic. "Mr. Doyle and Mrs. Godde both deny all the charges of Miss Allen's suit," he said. "There is absolutely no basis for the action. Mr. Doyle did not meet Mrs. Godde until last June. Miss Allen's suit for divorce was filed sometime before that and she was granted her interlocutory decree in April."

"Legal steps to defend the suit will be taken at once."

Most Dangerous Place on Earth-- Is Home at Night

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The government's accident prevention conference defined today the most dangerous place in the world as home, sweet home.

And, the safety experts added, the most dangerous time to be there is at night.

Saying we don't have to sleep in the dark, the conference called for inventors to produce:

1. A mild light that will not interfere with slumber.

2. A light that goes on when you sit up or get out of bed.

3. A telephone that turns on a light when it rings in the night.

4. Doorbells that turn on lights when they ring.

Showing no patience with people who smoke in bed, the safety sages said they should be forced to sleep in tents, a good safe distance from anything inflammable.

The conference noted with surprise that, all jokes to the contrary, there are not many Americans who get hurt by falling out of bed or having the bed fall with them.

It took a long time to get the figures but 1936's medical and hospital bills for the care of home-accident victims totaled almost two million dollars a day!

YOUTH CONFESSES BATTERING GIRL, 3

Virginian, Held on Attack Charge, Denies Assault.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Dr. A. L. Herring said a 3-year-old girl found beaten and unconscious in a wooded swamp in Chesterfield county yesterday, showed signs of improvement tonight, although, he said, there was some question whether she would recover.

Meanwhile, Floyd Smith, 19, of Chesterfield county, was held in Henrico county jail on a charge of attempting criminally to assault the child.

Police said the youth confessed beating the child but denied he assaulted her.

Dr. Herring, the attending physician, said the child had suffered a fractured cheekbone and collarbone, a spine injury and severe bruises about the face and body.

Police Chief Smith said in his opinion the child's injuries indicated she had been picked up by the heels and her head bashed against a tree.

Questioned again today in county jail, officers said young Smith told them he had never smoked a cigarette or taken a drink.

He Eats 47 Pancakes To Prove He's No Piker

PERU, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Elmer Siebert devoured 47 pancakes for breakfast today.

He washed them down with four cups of coffee and also ate a few slices of bread to prove to Mrs. Siebert that the man she read about in the newspaper (he ate 40 pancakes) was a piker.

Siebert really likes to eat. Some time ago, his wife said, he ate 18 eggs at one meal, with three heaping platesful of fried potatoes and some bread and coffee. On another occasion he got thirsty and drank 12 bottles of soda.

ATLANTAN ASSUMES NAVAL COMMAND

Rear Admiral Clark H.
Woodward Takes Over
New York District.

As two one-pounders volleyed a 13-gun salute, the flag of Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward, of Atlanta, was raised over the decommissioned warship Seattle in New York's East river yesterday.

Apd with brief and simple ceremonies the command of the navy's third district passed to the 60-year-old Atlantan. He succeeds Rear Admiral Harris Laning, who retired November 1 after 45 years' service.

Admiral Laning read orders directing him to turn over command, his voice choking with emotion, and cried "haul down my flag." A moment later Admiral Woodward ordered his raised.

Rear Admiral Woodward worked on The Constitution prior to entering Annapolis in 1895. He rose from the rank of ensign to that of rear admiral.

Recently Admiral Woodward visited his sister, Mrs. T. T. Flagler, of 2221 Wesley road, N. W., in Atlanta. While here he expressed opinion "this nation needs a navy second to none."

During the Spanish-American War he served on the U. S. S. Brooklyn in the Battle of Santiago and during the World War was executive officer on the U. S. S. New York, being present at the surrender of the German fleet.

A regular visitor to Atlanta since he moved away 20 years ago, Mr. Paxon was well known here. Colonel and Mrs. Paxon will return to Atlanta Tuesday from Haddonfield. They were visiting in Atlantic City at the time of his death.

Mr. Paxon is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. O. Franklin, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Miss Helen Paxon, of Haddonfield.

Governor To Speak at Two Services; Other Observances Planned.

Protestant churches of Atlanta will join with others in Georgia and the nation in observing "Loyalty Day" with special services tomorrow.

Today and tomorrow have been designated "Loyalty Days" in proclamations issued by President Roosevelt, Governor Rivers and Mayor Hartsfield.

Services at two churches tomorrow will be led by Governor Rivers himself—at the Peachtree Christian church at 9:10 o'clock in the morning and at the Patillo Memorial Methodist church at 7:30 o'clock at night.

The Rev. W. P. King, editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, will be guest speaker at the services at the Hapeville Methodist church.

Combination services will be held at the Cooper Street Baptist church as the congregation observes its first annual home-coming day. The First Baptist church of East Point will mark their observance with installation of officers, while the First Baptist church of College Park will combine loyalty services and the dedication of their recently installed pipe organ.

Services tomorrow will inaugurate a series of religious and spiritual recovery sermons at the First Methodist church and the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer will hold "rally day" in the Bible school and "loyalty" services at the morning worship hour.

Anniversary Program. Special exercises will mark observation of Dr. S. F. Lowe's seventh anniversary as pastor of the Inman Park Baptist church. Emory University first-year men will be special guests at Glenn Memorial services tomorrow morning and young students will be entertained for dinner in homes of the congregation members.

Tech High students will receive one-fourth unit extra-curricular credit for attending 22 consecutive Sunday school services, it was announced yesterday.

The tenth season of evening bell services at the Peachtree Christian church will be resumed at 5 o'clock tomorrow.

Members of the congregation of the Cathedral of St. Philip will meet for corporate communion at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow and then return to their homes during the regular church hour to receive the canvassing teams from the cathedral. These teams will receive subscriptions for support of the church work.

Observation of home-coming at the West End Church of Christ tomorrow will mark the tenth anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. H. C. Hale.

2 Others Die, 5 Hurt in Crack-Up in Greece.

ATHENS, Oct. 1.—(UP)—John Raymond Henderson, Broadway press agent and advance man for Katharine Cornell, and two other passengers aboard the Imperial Airways flying boat Courtier, died today when the ship crashed in fog into the Bay of Phaleron.

Five others among the flying boat's nine passengers were seriously injured.

Divers searched tonight for the bodies of Henderson, who was covering the route which Miss Cornell intends to follow with a theatrical company, and an unidentified Briton.

12-Year-Old Former Atlanta Girl Is Starring on Stage in New York

Janna MacMillan Played Leading Role in Two Productions and Has Been Cast Star Part in Little Theater Presentation in New York.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG. Janna MacMillan, beautiful and talented 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. MacMillan, of Augusta, formerly of Atlanta, is winning a name for herself on the legitimate stage.

During the summer she had leading roles in two plays given at the 59th Street theater in New York city, "Too Many Marys" and "Joan and Darby." She has been accepted by the Little Theater Players, and a play is being written in which the Little Theater Players will star her at the Comedy theater, 41st street, New York, during the Christmas holidays, a signal honor.

Miss MacMillan received a screen test at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios recently, the result of which has not yet been announced.

Atlanta friends remember little Miss MacMillan's outstanding performances in plays presented by the Children's Theater of Atlanta.

DEATH THREAT SENT TO 2 GRAND JURORS

of 23 men, and for that reason, I think the telephone calls were probably the work of a crank. No one would think that I was entirely responsible for the investigation. It is probable that several others on the grand jury have received similar threats.

One juror, who refused to be quoted, said last night he had heard Andrews say something about receiving a threat, but Andrews was emphatic in his denial. "The calls which came to me were muffled," Coolidge said. "It was apparent that the person calling was careful to disguise his voice."

"I do not attach too much importance to it. I'm not staying in nights."

"Our grand jury is trying to perform a real service for the people of Atlanta and Fulton county in routing organized crime. I do not believe that a single member of the jury could be influenced by a threat from the underworld or anyone else. This grand jury means business about ferreting out crime and we are going to carry on, threat or no threat."

Ewing, Coolidge and Andrews, backed by every other member of the grand jury, have been zealous in pressing the investigation into the buying of police protection by racketeers and the drive to crush racketeers, especially operation of the bug lottery.

Two-Week Inquiry. The threats climaxed two weeks of intensive work in which the grand jury has devoted long hours to the query of witnesses and to the assimilation of evidence through which it will attempt to drive all racketeers from the metropolitan district.

Clear indication that indictments will be sought against at least 10 alleged big shot bug operators was given yesterday, when it was learned that the principals are named in bills already drawn for submission to the grand jury.

Andrews last night stressed the fact we are not trying to force attorneys to violate confidences of their clients.

"We want to know who employed them as attorneys and we want to know who promised bondsmen to pay them for bonds," he said in referring to the contempt citations against William R. Bentley and Guy Tyler, attorneys, who refused to answer questions asked them in the grand jury room.

Hearing Due Tuesday. The citations are due for a hearing at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning before Judge E. D. Thomas.

"If any lawyers or bondsmen for that matter are trying to hide the big shots in organized racketeers, that fact should be known. We have not asked the attorneys for any confidential information. We merely asked who employed them."

"We are told that the small fry themselves do not know who hires lawyers who pay the bonds in the event they are caught. In fact, when a person is caught, he does not even know the lawyer who defends him. He has no part in the selection of his own attorney."

Definite indications that the major lottery racketeers had folded up at least temporarily was seen yesterday when it was announced by the solicitor's office that the big shots are abandoning the small fry.

It was said that attorneys are such as the leading parts in "Little Women," "Cinderella," "Sunny of Sunnyside" and several other plays as well as radio programs that brought commendation for her dramatic ability.

Almost since the time Janna could speak, her ambition has been to become an actress, and her favorite play pastime has always been "playing theater." Her talent is considered unusual, because, for a child of her age, she possesses a keen sensitivity and a quick adaptation to almost any character, and her ability to merge her own personality into that of the character is indicative of a natural flair for real acting.

Frank, director of the Little Theater Players, New York, says of her, "Janna is really a remarkable child. I honestly and sincerely believe that she has a beautiful future. . . . Having auditioned so many people over a period of years, I feel, without ego, that I am qualified to judge a person's talents."

EMBASSY CLUB OPENS; BUSINESS AS 'USUAL'

The Embassy Club, on the Atlanta-Bufford highway, just over the DeKalb-Gwinnett county line, was reopened for business yesterday.

Small gold-engraved blue membership cards admitted about 150 persons to the Gwinnett county bright spot to the opening after about a month of idleness.

Patrons reported the club was running full-tilt. The membership cards called patrons to the reopening.

not showing up at trials and that when writers and others with bug paraphernalia are apprehended, they have difficulty in making bonds. Fine money also is missing, according to testimony presented to the grand jury.

The immunity which the small fry formerly had has vanished because of the heat which has forced suspension of business by major companies.

Panic in the ranks of writers and pickup men has been reported, and there also were reports last night that at least one principal lieutenant of a large lottery company left town Thursday night.

SEVEN 'WRITERS' ARE GIVEN FINES

Seven negro "bug writers" yesterday appeared in Judge Jesse M. Wood's misdemeanor court and received the usual sentences and warnings.

Fines of $50 and suspended sentences of a year were given Abbie Rogers, James Thomas, Lela Whitman, Augustus McGeer, Leon Anderson and Gus Jordan.

A second offender, Walter Weathers, received a year's sentence on the chain gang.

TEXAS PAROLE PLAN ADOPTION IS URGED

Salvation Army Officials, Here for Congress, Cite Success of System.

Widespread adoption of the Texas prison parole system was urged here yesterday by a group of Texas Salvation Army officials, who announced they planned to suggest that the organization sponsor the movement.

Major William George Gilks, divisional commander of the Salvation Army in Texas and chairman of the Dallas county parole board, said the program involves long-range planning from the time the prisoner is sentenced.

Citing the success of the system in Texas, Major Gilks said 85 per cent of those paroled have been placed in profitable and honorable employment. "We are interested in the person; the individual—not crime," he said.

Under the setup, Major Gilks explained, county parole boards composed of judges, lawyers, businessmen are established and those on parole report to this board. The board starts to function at the time the prisoner goes to prison, rather than when he is ready for parole, he said.

JAPAN IS RAPPED BY BISHOP CANNON

Accused of 'Massacre of Helpless Civilians.'

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 1.—(AP) Expulsion of Japan "from the family of civilized nations of the world," was sought tonight by Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist Church, South.

Bishop Cannon, in a letter addressed to Cordell Hull, secretary of state, accused Japan of "continued massacre of helpless civilians" in its "unprovoked, ruthless warfare against China." He urged Hull to initiate a world-wide demand the war must cease and suggested severance of all diplomatic relations and an embargo of all monetary and commercial transactions if the demand was not respected.

OVERALL-CLAD YOUTHS HELD FOR PROBE HERE

Three white youths, clad in overalls but with dress suits in a suitcase, were held for investigation last night at Boulevard, S. E., and the railroad.

Patrolmen G. R. Elliott and J. T. Malcom questioned J. S. Carr, proprietor of a beer parlor at 1047 Boulevard, who said the boys had changed clothes in his place and asked him to change a $50 bill.

Held were youths listed as J. B. Yarborough, 20, of 4-1-2 Georgia avenue; Ernest McDonough, 19, of 326 Candler street; and C. W. Thomas, 16, of Polo Rock drive.

INSURGENTS POISE FOR ANOTHER DRIVE

New Smash Toward Gijon Planned; Franco Honors Hitler and Duce.

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Spanish insurgent troops today poised for another smash at Covadonga, where national shrines are defended by the rugged mountain men of Asturias in one of Spain's wildest regions.

Driving a tortuous path toward Gijon, focal point of the government's last stronghold on the northwest coast, two insurgent brigades moved toward the neighboring towns of Covadonga and Cangas de Onis. A coastal column, west of the Sella river, threatened a rear attack by a move down the valley.

At Covadonga is the sarcophagus which is said to hold the remains of Pelayo, eighth century founder of the Asturian kingdom. In the same cave is the tomb of King Alfonso I, who died in 757. Insurgent planes roved over the region today, bombing several towns. In an air battle over Gijon, both sides lost a plane.

Generalissimo Franco bestowed honors today on the King of Italy, Premier Benito Mussolini, of Italy, and Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, in observance of the first anniversary of his assumption of power in Insurgent Spain.

PARIS IS ENCOURAGED OVER REPORTS ON FRANCO

PARIS, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Unofficial reports that General Francisco Franco, head of the Insurgent Spanish government, is willing to have volunteers withdrawn from the Spanish civil war, tended somewhat to ease tension over the issue tonight.

It was said that General Franco soon would advise interested powers of his attitude. The report injected a more favorable note here in political discussion of the Anglo-French proposal of a conference with Italy on the controversial volunteer question.

holding their own along the Shanghai front and counter-attacking Japanese in some sectors. They told of routing Japanese troops in the vicinity of Kiangwan, north of Shanghai. Japanese admitted the Kiangwan civic center buildings had been evacuated but said their lines to the rear were unchanged.

Bombing Condemned. Japanese bombardment of Hankow and the Hankow-Canton railway September 25 drew sharp condemnation from Rear Admiral Harry Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet.

The admiral branded as erroneous a Japanese spokesman's statement that Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson had advised the Japanese navy that all Americans and other foreigners had been evacuated from the area by noon at September 26. Yarnell said that in reality Johnson told Japanese foreigners would be evacuated from the territory after that date.

He stated several thousand foreigners, including 1,000 Americans, are in the Yangtze river valley and added that "it is imperative that a safe route for their evacuation be speeded upon."

New Warning Rumored. Chinese, meanwhile, said Japan was considering a further warning to foreign powers to evacuate Nanking to avoid danger of air raids. The Chinese news agency said the warning would be based on the ground that several Japanese planes raiding Nanking recently were shot down when they flew low to avoid damaging foreign property.

(Japan's navy ministry admitted Japanese warships recently had shelled a fleet of Chinese junk off the South China coast, but said the shelling was in self-defense.)

Japanese military sources at Peiping reported that Americans stranded at Paoingfu, North China stronghold recently taken by the Japanese, were safe and that American property was being protected by the Japanese army.

LEAGUE IS CAUTIOUS ON AGGRESSION PLEA

GENEVA, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Members of a subcommittee entrusted with outlining the League of Nations' course of action in the Sino-Japanese conflict tonight viewed with apprehension a single word—"aggression."

China asked the League to declare her a victim of Japanese aggression. The request was sent to the subcommittee, of which Leonard Harrison, United States representative, is a consultative member.

AMERICAN WOUNDED IN CHINESE BOMBING. SHANGHAI, Saturday, Oct. 2. Sailors on the United States flag-ship Augusta were summoned to battle stations as Chinese air-planes staged four desperate raids on Japanese positions in Shanghai's International Settlement last night and early today.

Motorist Finds 'Man' in Street; Police Puzzled by Dummy Mystery

Detectives Seek to Link Well-Dressed Model to Fake-Damage Claim Gang or Practical Joker; Woman Reports It to Officers.

A well-dressed dummy found lying in the middle of Crew street last night mystified detectives as they sought to trace it to a fake-damage claim gang or a practical joker.

Though Atlanta has been plagued with fake damage claim gangs in the past, never has one employed the use of dummies in staging accidents, Detective Lieutenant R. P. Burnette and Captain Jack Malcom said.

Sees 'Man' in Road. An unidentified woman, riding on Crew street, between Haygood and Hatcher shortly after dark, saw the "man" lying in the road and stopped before running over him.

She called police to remove the "dead man" but investigation revealed the "man" was a dummy. Police headquarters received several calls seeking information as to identity of the "dead man" removed in the police car.

Made from wire framing, the dummy was clad in black suit, hat, shoes, shirt and neatly tied tie, with gloves on his hands and a white handkerchief over the "face," making it appear white in the glare of "headlights."

Detectives are tracing the "dummy's" past to see if it had any connections with fake damage claim gangs.

Usual Methods. In damage claim rackets where a dummy is used, the gang usually throws it in front of a speeding car and substitutes a man before the driver can stop and return, Burnette said.

Some policemen were of the opinion the dummy had been used for other purposes and discarded the owner throwing it in the road. But, as detectives investigated "him," "he" sat serenely in the liquor store room at police headquarters, surrounded on all sides by assorted fine whiskeys captured in recent raids.

'Bug' Tickets Are Found 100 Yards From Jailhouse. City detectives yesterday arrested a negro with a quantity of bug tickets in a lunchroom less than 100 yards from police headquarters.

Walter Blackston, 57, of 21 Young street, was placed in Fulton tower under $1,000 bond on lottery charges.

Detectives Frank Watson and C. C. Harper said Walter threw a pack of tickets under the counter when they entered. They said six additional ticket books were found in a coal bin adjoining the lunchroom.

TEA GAS IS FIRED AT STUDENT MOB

Riot Follows Storming of Theater in Michigan; Two Are Hurt.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 1.—(UP)—Police tonight fired two rounds of tear gas into a mob of University of Michigan students to break up a riot after a pep-meeting mob stormed the Michigan theater, lit a bonfire in the street and disabled a fire engine.

Two students were arrested and one student and a townsman were injured in the brief battle which followed the crowd's attempt to gain free admission to the theater.

Thousand a Mob. The mob was estimated by police at 1,000.

Balked at the theater door by Manager Robert Allen, the students virtually stripped the theater marquee of electric light bulbs. Then they piled barrels and trash from a nearby alley into the middle of the street and lit them.

A small chemical truck from the nearest fire station hove into sight, manned by several firemen.

The students grabbed the firemen, emptied the truck's tires of air, then threw the entire apparatus on the sidewalk before a squad of ten police arrived swinging nightsticks and aiming tea gas guns.

Tug-of-War Waged. The riot was preceded by a tug-of-war between Manager Allen and the students, with each side trying to maintain custody of Clark Benham, a senior student from Scarsdale, N. Y. The students won the tug-of-war, but Allen retained Clark's left shoe.

Clark was hit over the left eye during the melee and was treated at University hospital.

The march on the theater followed a pep meeting on the University campus for next Saturday's football game with Michigan State College.

5 A. P. WRITERS GIVE WAR TALKS

Japan Shows No Sign of War, One Reports.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Five foreign correspondents of the Associated Press tonight told some of their experiences in a far-flung broadcast from Shanghai, Tokyo, Madrid and Geneva.

The correspondents were Joseph Sharkey, speaking from Geneva; Charles F. Nutter, from Madrid; Relman Morin, from Tokyo, and Morris J. Harris and James A. Mills, from Shanghai. They were introduced by O. S. Gramling, executive assistant to the general manager, speaking from New York.

Morin, chief of the Tokyo bureau, described conditions in the Japanese capital.

"Outwardly," he said, "there is not the slightest sign of war here, either in Tokyo or the surrounding countryside. Only a few weeks ago we were cabling thousands of words about the troops departing, and the Japanese were waving the red rising sun flag of Japan."

"But today the ballyhoo of war has gone. In its place there is a deadly calm, all the more oppressive because it boils up from beneath the surface."

CAROLINAN NAMED COADJUTOR BISHOP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(Saturday)—(UP)—The apostolic delegation here tonight announced that due to the illness of Bishop Thomas C. O'Reilly, of Scranton, Pa., that the Most Reverend William J. Hasey, present bishop of Raleigh, N. C., has been appointed coadjutor bishop of Scranton with the right of succession and the faculty of apostolic administration.

NEGRO WHO DUCKED PAYING FINE NABBED

P. W. Ricks, 21, negro, of 280 Linden street, who, police said, walked from recorder's court last Saturday unnoticed and without paying a $27 fine for being drunk and disorderly, was arrested on suspicion of burglary last night.

Radio Patrolmen W. D. Nash and A. J. Coppenger arrested the negro after receiving reports he was selling goods on Fourth street. When they booked him at the station lieutenant's office, they found he was the "walk-away" man.

JAMES OWEN ACREE DIES UNEXPECTEDLY

A native of Atlanta, he had been actively in business here for 40 years. He was a member of the Capitol View Masonic lodge. Surviving are his wife, a son, Roy J. Acree; a daughter, Mrs. R. A. Johnson, and one brother, William Acree.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by J. Austin Dillon.

According to Esquire and other fashion enthusiasts, the popularity of stripes is greater than ever this year. And here's a new development that bids fair to sweep the country in nothing flat! The triple-stripes do important things for the figure—like trimming down the waistline and adding inches to your height. It is an effect that really has great character and individuality—yet conservative in appearance because of the way the colored stripes are subtly and beautifully blended into the blue-grey background of the fabric. It's sure to fill the bill and look well on you, come in, see it.

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 2, 1937.

"LOYALTY DAYS"

Climaxing a great revival conducted by Protestant churches all over Georgia, this state will join the nation in observance today and tomorrow of "Loyalty Days," so designated in proclamations by President Roosevelt and the Governors of the states. Governor Rivers has issued such a proclamation for Georgia and Mayor Hartsfield for the city of Atlanta.

Every citizen of the nation is urged to attend services in the church of his choice on these two days. It is a call designed to have wide effect in reawakening the religious sentiment of the nation and in leading the people back to a renewed realization of the spiritual values of life.

Without firm foundation upon the faiths of the fathers, no nation can long survive. Whatever creed man may accept, he must believe in some form of religious expression if he is to fulfill the highest possibilities of his life as a citizen. The highest truths humanity has ever glimpsed are discovered through faith in things unseen and through the aspiring vision which ever climbs to fuller understanding of the realities of the spirit.

The nation was founded upon the rock of religious freedom. That freedom is one of the essential foundations of liberty. But only through exercise of the religious instinct which lies deep within the heart of every man or woman, can freedom climb from the material things of earth to the more real truths within the eternal soul of man.

It is well for all of us to cling closely to the church of our faith and it is likewise well, on these two special "Loyalty Days," to renew that faith in order that every day of our lives may be dedicated to better manhood and finer womanhood and greater contribution to citizenship.

PLEASE, BE CAREFUL!

During September Atlanta's record on traffic fatalities, which had made a splendid improvement for the year prior to this month, has taken a distressing backward step. Thirteen have died as the result of traffic accidents last month, the longest fatality list from this cause for any month in the past two years, being equaled only by November, 1936.

Unless there is renewed care by drivers and pedestrians alike, the anticipated improvement for the year, in this regard, will be wiped out before the final statistics for 1937 are compiled.

The fall of the year is the worst season for traffic accidents. Climatic conditions and the change from summer driving habits is probably accountable. This very fact, however, should impel even greater care than ever.

It is not always the driver who is to blame when the sickening thud of an auto bumper against a human body is heard. Pedestrians, in more than 50 per cent of such cases, are at fault. Failure to obey traffic lights, jaywalking and omission of the precautionary glance to right and left before stepping into the traffic lanes, bring death to many.

Only observance by both drivers and pedestrians of every rule of safety and the constant realization that death is never more than a few yards away on a modern city street, can bring a halt to the deplorable frequency of traffic tragedies.

Atlanta has done splendidly during the first eight months of 1937. Don't permit, please, the final four months to spoil that fine record for the year prior to September 1.

DRIVING TO THE JOB

Approximately three-fourths of the steel workers in the United States drive from home to work in their own automobiles, or in the cars of fellow workers. This is shown in the results of a survey recently conducted by the American Iron and Steel Institute.

The survey covered 157,000 of the 533,000 workers in the industry in this country. Of those 157,000, three-fourths, approximately 117,000, own their own cars.

The proportion of car-ownership among steel workers is higher than the average for the entire population, as the result of a steady increase in car purchases by this class since early in 1936.

Not only do steel workers own many cars, but they are extensive drivers, covering many miles on the open highways in addition to the distance, which is steadily increasing, between their homes and the plants where they are employed. There is a strong trend, it is reported, for homes at some distance from the steel mills. Thousands have moved to rural or semi-rural surroundings. At plants accessible to agricultural areas, from 10 to 15 per cent of the men either own or lease farms, while as high as 35 to 40 per cent "live in the country."

Personnel executives explain this evident prosperity among the rank and file of the workers by pointing to gains in steel operations and higher wage scales. Hourly earnings, it is pointed out, have increased nearly 35 per cent since 1929.

BUSINESS STILL ADVANCES

The monthly review of business conditions in the sixth district, for August, by the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, shows that trade continues the steady improvement which has been consistent every month for several years.

The latest report, however, carries an added reason for congratulation in the fact that retail trade improvement over the preceding month was more than seasonal. Retailers expect an increase at the end of the summer approaches, but the 24.1 per cent improvement cannot all be accounted for on this ground. These sales were, also, 6.4 per cent greater than in August a year ago.

Other increases noted during the month were in wholesale trade, building activity and in cotton mill and cottonseed oil mill operations.

Despite the handicap of a low price for cotton, the southeast is thus enabled to enjoy a degree of prosperity which reveals the basic firmness of its trade and industrial foundations of today. Variety of interests, with a proper balance between industry and agriculture, provides a steady influence which makes a slump in one line merely a limited disadvantage, offset by prosperous conditions in others.

It is the same advantage, applied on the entire economic picture of a region, that the individual farmer enjoys when he practices diversification, growing many different crops. It is, in brief, the wise habit of "not putting all your eggs in one basket."

"HE NEVER READ NEWSPAPERS"

A news story from Ireland—or should it be Eire?—tells of a farmer there, who, charged with possession of an unlicensed shotgun, told the court he never read newspapers and, consequently, had never heard of licenses for guns.

He also admitted he hadn't heard of the abdication of King Edward VIII of England; the World War; the Irish Free State or its President, Eamon De Valera; the Black and Tan rebellion, or President Roosevelt, of the United States.

The farmer, explaining his ignorance, said he "minded his own business and never read newspapers."

It is self-evident that the man's claim, in one particular at least, is false. For he does not, emphatically, "mind his own business." He could not do so without reading newspapers.

For today it is the business of every citizen to be well informed on public questions and world developments. It was the business of that Irish farmer to know, at least, the far-reaching developments in his own land. An Irishman who admits he had never heard of the World War, of the Irish Free State, of Eamon De Valera or the Black and Tan rebellion confesses thereby that he has woefully neglected his own business.

Modern forms of government depend upon the average citizen being well informed. He should know not only the foundations upon which his government is built, but he should keep abreast with each development and change. He should know, clearly, the rights he is guaranteed as a citizen and the duties he should perform. He should be alert to defend those rights and meticulous in the performance of those duties.

To achieve this ability in good citizenship it is essential that he read the newspapers so that he may keep in constant touch with the outer world.

A man who displays such ignorance as that admitted by this Irish farmer is an extreme example of a man who has totally failed to "mind his own business" as a citizen.

The Social Security Board must decide whether clam digging is fishing or farming, but the official mind is mysterious and it may compromise on mining.

From every quarter comes the din of battle. War games are being held throughout Europe, and unhappy China is in the throes of a mimic peace.

In New Jersey, a beer van ran over a man's head with no apparent ill effect. It's the sixth or eighth van that begins to get you.

The stiffening of the British official attitude begins to tell. It Duces continues to lead with his chin, but only into a camera.

Instinct is strong, and if the dove of peace had a home, it is likely it would begin homing.

Editorial of the Day

A DEFENDER OF THE PRESS
(From the Christian Science Monitor.)

Speaking at a conference on the challenge to democracy recently, Sir Walter Layton, chairman of the company which controls the News Chronicle, endeavored to defend the British press against some of the accusations which are frequently brought against it, and urged the necessity of maintaining its freedom in the interest of democracy.

Corruption is a nonexistent thing in British daily journalism. There is no newspaper in Britain that could be bribed to modify its policy, and no journalist who would not be instantly "sacked" if he accepted a bribe.

Contrary to the prevailing view, editorial policy, in the case of the great dailies, including that of the "popular" press, is seldom influenced by advertising.

It is not at any time satisfactory to speak of the press as if it were all of one character. It is fair to recognize that a newspaper which aims at being read by millions, as Sir Walter said, "operates within the limits of the background provided by the thinking of the millions of people who read it." But the charge against a section of the popular press, in Britain as in America, is not that it considers the taste of its public, but that it underestimates the character of that taste, and panders to its lowest side.

These are not arguments for the suppression of the freedom of the press—the distortion due to censorship leads to greater falsity than the distortion due to sensationalism. Rather they are arguments for the greater freedom of the press—for release from the excessive commercialism of some of its controllers—for strengthening the hands of those who sincerely wish to use the press legitimately—for doing all that can be done through good journalism to spread significant news and the best ideas.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAUSE.

NEW PUBLIC ENEMY WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The name of a new public enemy will be written on the books of the federal government by the time this reaches print.

She is called the "Green Goddess." And she is charged with nearly every horrible crime on the calendar.

Her other name is marijuana, product of the prosaic hemp, whose twined strands have ended the careers of many of her devotees.

Three years ago, the word marijuana meant little to the police of America. To the public, still less. Few guessed that it was the modern edition of the drug hashish, chief ration of the ancient Persian murder sect whose name, Hashishan, gave us our word assassin.

Since 1935, marijuana has been written across the police blotter from coast to coast, for it is held directly responsible for many of our most brutal crimes. It is charged with being an important factor in the recent crime wave.

Murder, rape, holdups, suicide and insanity have been definitely traced to the smoking of the so-called "reefers," or cigarettes made of the seeds and blossom of the hemp plant, sometimes as the result of smoking a single cigarette.

Until October 1 of this year, the federal government could do nothing to control the traffic in marijuana. The law which went into effect today makes it possible to take action against any one who is not licensed to produce or sell the drug and who sells without a prescription, such as is demanded for narcotics. (Experts question the drug's medical value.)

This means the beginning of a campaign which officials believe will be effective, now that Uncle Sam has taken a hand.

EASILY OBTAINED No big racketeers are behind the sale of "reefers," which are obtainable in many dance halls, hamburger joints and offered by peddlers, frequently to high school children.

The big racketeer doesn't handle marijuana because competition is too keen. Any vacant lot can produce it. Many do. Of course, there are cultivated plots, too, but many of these are already "spotted" by the federal sleuths and they will go up in oil-fied flames after today.

EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN Even though the Bureau of Narcotics has had no law to fight the evil up to this time, it has not been idle. As a result of an educational campaign on the use and misuse of the drug, many legitimate retailers are returning their stocks and wholesalers are not restocking.

Further, dealers in bird seed have agreed to sterilize their product. The connection may not seem evident. Here it is: Hemp seed is widely fed to birds. At the same time, it is the hardy and prolific parent of the marijuana plant. Therefore, innocent sweepings of seed from bird stores and its scattering by the housewife over the back fence as she cleans the bird cage, has caused the deadly weed to spring up in profusion almost overnight in many places.

The growth of the weed has spread so in this country that it is being smuggled into Canada and Great Britain from the United States.

GRUENING TO GO Another head is about to fall in the Department of the Interior.

While he hasn't heard the whisper himself, Dr. Ernest Gruening, director of the division of territories and island possessions, now combining rest and research has been in Hawaii, will be greeted with "Aloha" when he gets back. That word, it seems, means "good-bye" as well as "hello."

There is no official confirmation for the story, but there is a ready unofficial explanation: Namely, Secretary of the Interior Ickes' staunch refusal to escape responsibility of any kind. He is willing, apparently, to be responsible for territories and island possessions, as well as the administration of the Puerto Rico Reconstruction Administration, which he recently took from Dr. Gruening's shoulders.

LEWIS REFUSES TO SHARE POWER There is a threatening cloud hanging over the American Federation of Labor convention, starting next week in Denver. It is the meeting of the CIO executives in Atlantic City the following week.

What will Mr. Lewis do? There is one thing he won't do, according to those who claim to know what goes on behind the beetling brows of the "bull of the woods."

It is to permit his colleagues, Sidney Hillman, head of the powerful Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and David Dubinsky, of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, to insist on a constitution for the CIO.

A constitution, it is assumed, would reduce Mr. Lewis' power and give more to Messrs. Hillman, Dubinsky et al. But Mr. Lewis, it is said, is satisfied with the status quo.

MARIJUANA SONG BANNED By mere coincidence, one piece of unconscious propaganda for the use of marijuana was nipped in the bud. A movie containing a seductive song entitled, "Sweet Marijuana, Lull Me to Sleep," was shown in Geneva, Switzerland, while the opium committee of the League of Nations was meeting.

Appeal was made to Czar Hays, who had the piece eliminated. (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

While twenty-five million people go to the movies each day, Things can't be so tough, it seems to me, In this funny old U. S. A.

Now for A Little History. Remembering that this is Saturday and thinking sympathetically of all the little school children who will, today, come to the breakfast table in tears because there is no school today and no lessons to study, Silhouettes decided to fill the gap by presenting a little comment this morning on Georgia history.

So, children, dry your tears and listen quietly and let's see if we can tell you anything about Georgia you didn't know.

Did you ever hear, to begin one of the real reasons why the colony of Georgia was first founded? Of course you know it was to be a refuge for poor people (not only those who were in debtors' prison, but all varieties of hard-up folks) and likewise a refuge for the Salzburgers and other persecuted religious sects of Europe. But there was another reason.

It was intended to be a military protection to South Carolina against the encroachments of Spaniards who then possessed Florida. Did you know that?

Next time you meet a proud South Carolinian tell him Georgia was created to protect his little state. A kind of big brother, you see, shielding the little fellow from the bully to the south.

When Did Prohibition First Come to Georgia? You all know, undoubtedly, that this state is today, theoretically at least, dry. You have at least been told, even if you haven't seen it in working order, that there is a law against hard liquor in Georgia.

But do you know when Georgia had her first prohibition law? The date when the noble experiment of prohibition was first tried in this state?

Why, it was very shortly after the very beginning of the colony, in 1733 when General James Oglethorpe and his followers landed at Yamacraw bluff and founded both the city of Savannah and the colony of Georgia.

For nearly the first 14 years of the new colony's existence both rum and slavery were prohibited. But both bans were removed in 1747.

Prior to 1802 Georgia territory included not only what we now know as Georgia, but also almost all the land which is now composed of the states of Alabama and Mississippi. In that year this state ceded all its territory west

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PROBLER.

Black NEW YORK Oct. 1. Well, anyway, the scandal Hugo Black thing isn't all scandal and outrage, and for the comedy relief in an otherwise angry episode, we owe thanks to our red and pink pals over on the left who have been giving a hilarious imitation of the wrestler who let out a horrible yowl of pain, rolled over on his back and discovered that, in the confusion of the struggle, he had been twisting his own foot.

Would anybody ever have expected to see the day when the butchers' paper literati would find themselves stuck with a Kluxer, and did anyone ever imagine that in a desperate attempt to save face our bolos would be driven to the humiliating necessity of apologizing for their guy's lack of intelligence and character and minimizing the atrocity of the Klan?

To obtain the best effect it is necessary to go back to the days when the Klan was riding high and read up on the resounding fury of the reds and pinks. In those days there was no discount or mitigation, and anyone who joined out with the anti-riders, whether for active, personal service as a terrorist, or merely as a politician seeking votes, was flattered by the name of heel. In fact, the politician who wasn't really klannish at heart, but joined merely to win a cheap political job, was considered to be distinctly lower than the ignoramus who actually thought the Pope was fixing to storm the White House and earnestly subscribed to the Mother Goose prattle about kludds, kladdis and kligrappus.

Change The politician, if he had character, would have felt himself contaminated by the approval of such people and honored by their hatred, and you can read writings to this effect in all the publications which are now attempting to argue that when Hugo changed from a white nightshirt to a black one he also became another person. At that time they wouldn't grant you that any adult man who joined the Klan could live long enough to get over it, and there are those of us who heard them the first time and agreed entirely.

Then, all of a sudden, and thanks to the deception practiced on the state as well as on them, they discovered that they had been cheering shrilly for a man with a past.

I will say one thing for them. They do not often speak so dishonestly. Usually they are fairly consistent and they have done themselves injustice in this case, for they would have been at least honest if they had admitted a mistake instead of resorting to arguments which sound like the state papers of Little Joe Goebbels.

Counter Attack The counter-attack has been directed mainly at the personalities and motives of those who made and exploited the personality of Paul Block, whose Pittsburgh paper broke the story. And while I yield to no man in that which I may describe mildly as my dislike for Paul Block, it isn't necessary for me to point out that Block isn't an issue. Neither is he a person with a personal grudge against Hugo Black, and equally irrelevant is the fact that many persons who delight in the Klan story are hypocrites who wouldn't object to klannishness if Hugo were a reactionary Republican.

The issue is whether Hugo is a man whose maturity years ago was in his nature, years ago was the Ku Klux Klan and whether those who condemned the Klan so fiercely in its heyday now wish to change their position to anticipate the possibility that he was or is.

Nothing can be gained by denouncing people who are not involved, and even if it be granted for the sake of argument that Paul Block had ulterior motives for breaking the story, the question remains the same.

I am afraid our pals on the left have lost their sense in their shock and horror at the discovery, but they will do themselves no good railing at fate, the house fly and time, meanwhile neglecting the trouble. They ought to calm down, accept the situation, see the doctor and start taking their medicine.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 1.—Here's a little tale that is being attributed to one of the movie producers who formerly lived in what are known as "westerns" or "horse-operas," but since then has gone on to a higher artistry. He boasts that he's self-educated, but those of his friends who don't like him intimate that he must have quit the job before getting on to the first grade.

He was in the throne room at the studio the other day when his secretary, reading aloud from the paper that 22 Japanese aviators, having failed to reach their objective during an attack on Chinese defenses, said they had all "committed hari-kari."

"The whole bunch of suckers commit hari-kari, huh?" he commented. "Funny none of 'em didn't commit Hoot Gibson."

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad To His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise: Your present ambition to get knowledge is altogether commendable, but it would encourage me more to hear you yearn for wisdom and understanding.

Without wisdom you aren't likely to get much knowledge in the first place or use it to advantage after you get it. The beginning of knowledge is the realization of ignorance. You won't learn anything until you first realize that you don't know it. It is like the old theological doctrine that you can't be converted until you are convicted of sin. It is not delight in ignorance that keeps people ignorant, but their conviction that they know as much as anybody else.

People are blessed with a natural curiosity and a tendency to hunt for the answers, but alas! any explanation that seems plausible, like the one that doctors bring the babies, is enough to satisfy them. And that willingness to accept an easy explanation and look no farther kept mankind in pathetic ignorance for many thousands of years.

That shows you what happens when wisdom is lacking. The unwise kept on learning, but they learned things that weren't true. Their heads were full of knowledge, but half of it was foolishness and they didn't know the difference. In Puritan days, which weren't so long ago, there were experts so learned they could recognize a witch at a glance.

We know more now, and consider ourselves hard to fool; but much of our knowledge is the hearsay kind, accepted because it seems plausible, and we'd be in a dreadful fix if called upon to prove it.

Within the last week, in the course of unplanned reading, I have come across the following positive statements by experts: that fish cannot hear; that a snake hears with its tongue; that insects and birds cannot think as men do; that the unicorn never existed except in fable.

This is knowledge. But will you tell me how anybody knows what a fish hears or doesn't hear, or how a snake hears, or whether an insect is thinking?

Scientists answer that the insect does things it wouldn't do if it could reason. But if that is the test, the evidence shows that man has no more reasoning capacity than a post.

As to the unicorn, there are thousands of miles of African forest never yet explored by civilized man, and strange beasts found nowhere else are discovered there. How do we know what is in a place we haven't seen?

Ask for the proof, my dear. You might as well stay ignorant as to learn a lot of things that aren't so.

Love, DAD.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"On heaven and thy lady call

And enter the enchanted hall . . ."

A few years ago the six governors of New England joined the New England Council in an "invitation to industry." Followed up with direct approaching, the "invitation" has done much to put New England back on the industrial map. This fall the sixth is matching New England's six governors with nine of her own, and in addition to inviting industry, is working through these governors to remove freight rate and other discriminations and other limitations upon industry's progress here. More than that, it is working out industrial policies that will assure a development rather than an exploitation and give this region the worth of its own human and natural resources as they are employed.

For many months now it has been this column's contention that with so many divergent interests operating in the south, the only south-wide economic organization that could be really effective and represent the region's whole interest as that interest needed to be represented was an organization of southern governors backed by industrial, agricultural, advertising and business experts. Such an organization seems to have come to pass in the Southeastern Governors' Conference now, and we salute it as a dream come true.

Public announcement of the Southeastern Governors' Conference is made in a page advertisement in the October issue of Fortune. The governors declare themselves by name as joined for the following objectives: (1) Proper freight-rate differentials, (2) Equitable taxation policies, (3) Friendly labor attitude between employer and employee, and (4) Co-operation with the federal government on proper major policies affecting industrial development. The advertisement is signed for the conference by Lawrence Wood Robert Jr., of Atlanta, who is retained as industrial consultant.

The states joined by their governors in this richly promising enterprise are North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, Tennessee, Kentucky and Mississippi. Missing from the list but to be added soon, we hope, is Virginia. The south isn't the south without Virginia, but more and more these days Virginians are coming to understand that neither is Virginia without the south.

Here's hoping the Southeastern Governors' Conference becomes one of the most permanent and active organizations in the history of the south. Here's hoping that it enlists the support of the Southern States Industrial Council, the Southeastern Council, the Southern Policy Group and all the other fine organizations which lack either the scope of interest or the enlisting power to do what the allied governors and their technical assistants can do. The time has come when business and government, capital and labor, industry and agriculture, have got to get on together in the south if any of them is to get anywhere at all. With all that divides them and will continue to divide them they have three great objectives upon which they can all agree and upon which the well-being of all depends.

The three objectives, as this column sees them, are (1) to create more wealth in the south, (2) to retain in the south more of the wealth created in the south, and (3) to distribute better in the south the wealth created and retained.

In our own state of Alabama steps are being taken for common action on the part of government, business, industry, agriculture, capital and labor. The secret is being found to be mutual concession and a recognition of the fact that all of them are here to stay and interdependent. A similar process is developing in other southern states, and if the same congregation of interests is to be attained for the region as a whole through the governors' conference, this may soon become the self-possessed land the Lord Almighty gives it great present opportunity to be.

F. D. R. APPARENTLY MISSES BLACK TALK WHILE AUTO RIDING

President Boards Train at Tacoma for Run to Grand Coulee Dam.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt started eastward by train tonight apparently without hearing the radio delivery of Justice Black's unusual address, which was broadcast while Mr. Roosevelt was traveling in an automobile.

The President devoted a four-minute rear platform talk here tonight to recounting his automobile tour of Washington and left for an overnight run to Grand Coulee dam. The train departed at 7:59 p. m. (9:59 p. m. Atlanta time).

Earlier, en route on a 231-mile drive to Tacoma, he paused in villages and towns along the way to receive the cheers of local groups.

Despite the storm, the motorcade of more than 20 cars kept a speed of more than 40 miles an hour over winding roads, bordered by fir and hemlocks as tall as 200 feet.

The President spent last night in a cabin of the Lake Crescent lodge, as did most members of his party.

As a result, some members of the party including newspapermen, were calling themselves "Roosevelt's Rough Riders."

Talmudic Tales

(From time to time Morantz will answer in this column questions he has been asked on the religion, customs, ceremonies, institutions, etc., of the Jews.)

QUESTIONS I'VE BEEN ASKED.

Do Jews eat lobsters and crabs? Those who adhere to the Jewish dietary laws do not. This law is based upon the prohibition contained in Leviticus XI:41, which reads:

"And every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth shall be an abomination; it shall not be eaten."

This includes all kinds of worms, mites, oysters, lobsters, crabs, etc. The Bible further gives a list of unclean creeping things, which include the weasel, the mouse, the chameleon, the land-crocodile, gecko and the snail. (Leviticus 11:2).

On the subject of creeping things, Dr. Belove has this to say: "The hedgehog, weasel, lizard, snail and mole, which are all forbidden, according to the law, are known to be carriers of the most virulent bacteria."

"Insects and creeping things that feed on refuse, vegetables or animals," says Rabbi H. P. Mendes, "are known to convey disease, the human being by sting, bite or otherwise, or by particles of putrescent matter, or germs adhering to their feet or bodies. To eat such would mean to introduce disease directly into our system. The communicability of the disease of animals to human beings eating their flesh is recognized today as among most serious causes of our ill health—diseases of the liver and organs from eating lobsters, crabs, etc., are familiar examples."

An attractive 195-page autographed gift volume containing 128 of the Talmudic Tales and 500 Pearls of Wisdom may be ordered from The Constitution, $1.50 postpaid.

Two Mexican Girls Most Colorful Of Salvation Army Groups Here

25-Year-Old Lassies Will Appeal to General Evangelina Booth for Establishment of Official Unit at Mexico City; Tell of Work There Now.

Two 25-year-old Mexican girls traveled 2,500 miles to arrive in Atlanta yesterday and tell their story to Evangelina Booth.

Never out of Mexico City before, Flor de Maria Flores and Francisca Ramirez came here with the Mexican delegation of the Salvation Army, eight in number, to attend the tenth congress of the Salvation Army.

To Appeal for Unit. They will appeal to General Booth to open up an official unit in Mexico City. The group from Mexico began work several years ago under the name of the Salvation Patrol. They carry on the same work carried on by the Army. Their success so far has encouraged them to become aligned with the Army. They are under the supervision of the Texas division, headed by the divisional commander, Major William G. Gilks.

Talking through their interpreter and adviser, the two almond-skinned girls, dressed in colorful native costumes of red skirts, brilliant with sequins, gay colored blouses and large red sombreros, told yesterday of the work they are doing in Mexico City.

Visit Hospitals. "We visit the hospitals and distribute literature through the most reputable parts of the city. On Saturday nights we gather about 80 or 90 children, bathe and dress them in fresh clothes. Many times they are just beggar children running around the streets. On Saturday nights about 12 o'clock the men and women of our patrol, about 50 in number, go into the cabarets and distribute literature." When asked how they are welcomed in the cabarets, they replied: "We are being received well. Even the owners buy the gospel literature."

The girls, very talkative, were anxious to tell that they devoted practically all their time outside of their work at home to the patrol. Both single and attractive, they were very shy on subjects of romance and marriage, but put their heads together and soon blurted, "We have our hopes, like all girls." Then they giggled.

Devoid of makeup except for a bit of powder on their noses, they said that many of the Mexican girls used more makeup than American girls and were very beautiful. Due to their work with the army, they explained, they left it off entirely.

Here among 2,000 delegates from 15 southern states, there is little danger that the Mexican delegation will be overlooked. With their gay costumes, harmonious music and singing they cannot fail to attract attention.

Major Gilks, who is more or less steering the Mexican delegation around, said yesterday: "Their work is badly needed in Mexico City, for nowhere is there more abject poverty. On my last visit I saw people lying around asleep on the streets—starving to death. It is almost certain that General Evangelina Booth will take over this patrol for the Army and begin work where it is greatly needed."

George To Speak. Governor Rivers is scheduled to introduce General Booth at the Sunday afternoon meeting, with Senator Walter F. George making the response after her address.

General Booth, fourth daughter of William and Catherine Booth, was born on Christmas Day in the year 1865, the same year in which her parents founded the Christian Mission, which later became the Salvation Army. Early in life she began to take an active part in Salvation Army work, often conducting meetings in the school room of her home.

In order to get in close touch with the poor and the slums of London, she adopted the disguise of a flower peddler and taught the people how to keep their houses clean and to care for their children. It was during this period that she became known as "The White Angel."

Popular Prejudice. She participated in street scenes which involved violence more than 100 times, and led her parades in the face of the most violent threats, for at that time there was a great deal of popular prejudice against these modern evangelists.

At 26 she became the principal of the Army's international training college and commander of field operations, where she remained for five years. Then, in 1896 her father placed her in command of the Army's forces in Canada.

During the period of the great Alaskan gold rush, Evangelina Booth hastened to the Klondike, and there, amid the toughest men known to the world today she established evangelical camps and libraries.

Won Over "Dictator." At Skagway she met the redoubtable "Soapy" Smith, mayor and dictator of the town, who referred to religious leaders as "mealy-mouthed sky pilots." She later won him to her side, however, and he even attended one of her meetings in Skagway and offered her protection.

It was this same Evangelina Booth who walked alone in the riotous streets of Dawson City and boldly preached the gospel to miners so hard and callous that they held life no dearer than a drink of "bad liquor."

During the World War General Booth went to France, where she supervised the work of the Salvation Army and served coffee and doughnuts to the soldiers in and behind the front lines. She received commendation from General Pershing and in 1919 she was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal from the United States government for "exceptionally meritorious services as commander of the Salvation Army in the United States."

It was that same Evangelina Booth who yesterday stepped from her train at the Terminal station to join in the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the southern territory before retiring from the service which has been the motivating influence of her life since she first saw the light of day on that bleak Christmas morning back in 1865.

FLAMING CROSS BURNS IN JERSEY

MOUNTAIN LAKES, N. J., Oct. 1.—(AP)—A cross, about 8 feet high, burned for a few minutes tonight at the dam at Mountain Lake, in the center of this north Jersey borough, while Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black delivered his radio address in which he said he once joined the Ku Klux Klan.

The cross, set fire by unidentified persons a few minutes before 9:20 p. m., burned about 10 minutes and then toppled to the ground.

It was not known whether the cross had any association with the organization. I have never resumed it and never expect to do so."

Defends Past. Then, quickly, he asserted: "At no meeting of any organization, social, political or fraternal, have I ever indicated the slightest disloyalty from my steadfast faith in the unfettered right of every American to follow his conscience in matters of religion."

Black, who comes from a state which has a large proportion of negroes in its population, said he included among his "friends" many members "of the colored race." He added that some of his best and most intimate friends are Catholics and Jews.

Criticism Criticized. He sharply criticized his own critics.

"During my recent absence on a short vacation abroad, a planned and concerted campaign was begun which fans the flames of prejudice and is calculated to create racial and religious hatred."

It will be the projection of religious beliefs into a position of prime importance in political campaigns and to reinforce our social and business life with the poison of religious bigotry. "It will punish the professional man whose patients and clients boycott him, not because of lack of professional ability, but because there are in his locality few members of his faith or his race. It will again set neighbor against neighbor and turn old friends into new enemies."

"To contribute my part in averting such a catastrophe in this land dedicated to tolerance and freedom, I break with precedents of the past to talk with you tonight."

Listeners heard a flutter of applause from the small group with Black after he concluded his address.

The justice contended that "an effort is being made to convince the people of America that I am intolerant, and that I am prejudiced against people of the Jewish and Catholic faiths and against members of the negro race."

"I believe that my record as a senator refutes every implication of racial or religious intolerance."

Explaining why he chose to break the precedent against justices speaking on controversial questions outside the courtroom, he said:

"I believe that no ordinary maneuver executed for political advantage would justify a member of the supreme court in publicly discussing it. If, however, that maneuver threatens the existing peace and harmony between religious or racial groups in our country, the occasion is not an ordinary one. It is extraordinary."

Text in Which Black Answers Accusers on Klan Membership

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The text of the address tonight by Associate Justice Hugo L. Black, of the supreme court:

Ladies and Gentlemen: The constitution is the supreme law of our country. The bill of rights is the heart of the constitution.

The constitutional safeguard to complete liberty of religious belief is a declaration of the future of America as a nation of free people. Any movement or action by any group that threatens to bring about a result inconsistent with this unrestricted individual right is a menace to freedom.

Let me repeat: Any program, even if directed by good intention, which tends to breed or revive religious discord or antagonism, can and may spread with such rapidity as to imperil this vital constitutional protection of one of the most sacred of human rights.

EXTRAORDINARY OCCASION PROMPTS DISCUSSION

I believe that no ordinary maneuver executed for political advantage would justify a member of the supreme court in publicly discussing it. If, however, that maneuver threatens the existing peace and harmony between religious or racial groups in our country, the occasion is not an ordinary one—it is extraordinary.

During my recent absence on a short vacation abroad, a planned and concerted campaign was begun which fans the flames of prejudice and is calculated to create racial and religious hatred. If continued, the inevitable result will be the projection of religious beliefs into a position of prime importance in political campaigns and to reinforce our social and business life with the poison of religious bigotry. It will bring the political religionist back into undeserved and perilous influence in affairs of government. It will elevate the least worthy religious or race bars others from a passport. It will resurrect practices and arguments from which this country suffered sorely in the nineteen-twenties.

It will punish the professional man whose patients and clients boycott him, not because of lack of professional ability, but because there are in his locality few members of his faith or his race. It will again set neighbor against neighbor and turn old friends into new enemies.

My words and acts are a matter of public record. I believe that my record as a senator refutes every implication of racial or religious intolerance. It shows that I was of that group of liberal senators who have consistently fought for the civil, economic and religious rights of all Americans, without regard to race or creed.

The insinuations of racial and religious intolerance made concerning me are based on the fact that I joined the Ku Klux Klan about 15 years ago. I did join the Klan. I later resigned. I never rejoined. What appeared then, or what appears now, on the records of the organization, I do not know.

I never have considered and I do not now consider the unsolicited card given to me shortly after my nomination to the senate as a membership of any kind in the Ku Klux Klan. I never used it. I did not even keep it."

I have no sympathy with any organization or group which, anywhere or anytime, arrogates to itself the un-American power to interfere in the slightest degree with complete religious freedom.

No words have ever been or will ever be spoken by me, directly or indirectly, indicating that any native or foreign-born person in our free country should or could be restricted in his right to worship according to the dictates of his conscience.

I believe the character and conduct of every public servant, great and small, should be subject to the constant scrutiny of the people. This must be true if democracy serves its purpose.

Wizard Says Black 'Has Judicial Mind'

Dr. Hiram Evans, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, said after listening to Justice Black's radio address last night: "He has a judicial mind—he'll make a great judge on the bench."

Dr. Evans said the justice's chronology of events in his life was "as I thought they were. I've been trying to tell folks that card (membership) didn't mean a thing."

"I thought it was a very sincere speech. His concept of religious and political freedom is sound Americanism. What he said about the races is sound, too."

The imperial wizard of the hooded order declared purported copies of a life membership card given Black at a meeting in Alabama bore the designation of "realm of Alabama" making it a "state affair."

His words to give more to a casual emphasis to his utterances. "I did join the Klan," he said, stressing the "did." Again, toward the end of his speech, the sentence "when this statement is ended my mind is at rest" (the question is closed) was delivered with a rapidly rising inflection and a sharp emphasis upon the word "closed."

The group in the Hamilton home while he spoke included Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Durr, who are relatives; Miss Ann Celeste Butt, his secretary; and his hostess, Mrs. and Mrs. Hamilton.

Sharply Divergent Comment Grets Associate Justice's Klan Address

John L. Lewis Jubilant; Bloom Says 'We're Still in a Fog.' Two Papers Call For Resignation, Another Says 'Caught With Goods.'

By the Associated Press. Comment last night on Associate Justice Black's radio address showed sharply divergent reactions.

John L. Lewis, chairman of the CIO, lauded the speech as a "powerful and straightforward statement."

"It defines the creed of all Americans, as well as that of Justice Black," he added.

Senator Glenn Davis, Democrat, Virginia, said he still didn't think the "Justice Black has pleaded guilty. Had he made these admissions before, he would neither have been appointed nor confirmed. Thus he gained one of the highest positions in the land by false pretenses. . . . He should resign."

WORCESTER, MASS., TELEGRAM (Republican): "Hugo L. Black, newly created justice of the United States supreme court, last night made perhaps as good a plea in his own defense as could be made under the circumstances. But it remains the plea of a man who was caught with the goods."

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER: "His public repudiation of his former colleagues comes too late to justify his acceptance now as a member of the supreme court. He goes tagged to resign."

LOS ANGELES TIMES: "... He uttered words in conflict with established fact. And . . . he managed to contradict himself damningly. His prefatory statement concerning the importance of religious freedom and the inviolability of the guarantees in the bill of rights was well enough, and could be considered forthright and proper if his sincerity was not open to question."

THE RALEIGH NEWS AND OBSERVER (Democrat): "Most Americans will be prepared to forget a Klan membership six years behind a senate service devoted to the welfare of all the people, white, black, Protestant, Catholic, Jew. It is too well known that many essentially good men foolishly aligned themselves with this now fortunately defunct organization."

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE (Republican): "Mr. Justice Black's whole conduct since the charges of Klan membership were brought against him has been that of a coward. . . . He has now added the vice of hypocrisy to his record of evasion. . . . It is now for President Roosevelt to speak. The country has been patient and ready to believe that he acted hastily and without due knowledge."

NEW YORK TIMES (Independent): "... Regardless of the present views he holds, and his affirmation of faith in the principles of racial and religious tolerance, it is a deplorable thing that a man who has ever taken the oath of allegiance in a sinister and destructive organization should now take his place on the highest court of justice in this country. . . . The nomination was a tragic blunder."

the senate heretofore had no knowledge. The whole episode is regrettable and I fear the United States supreme court has lost prestige with the American people."

Postmaster General James A. Farley: "Justice Black's radio address tonight speaks for itself."

Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas: "I have always opposed the Klan. Justice Black tonight frankly admitted he had been a member. Like many others who, on reflection, realize their error, he stated he resigned and abandoned it. Former membership in the Klan is not an impeachable offense. It seems to me the incident is closed."

Senator Millard Tydings, Maryland: "I voted against Black's confirmation. After hearing his speech, I have nothing to add or subtract from that position."

Representative Bernard Snell, New York, Republican minority leader of the house: "This is purely a Democratic row and I am perfectly willing to let the Democrats settle it for themselves, if they can."

Senator Edwin C. Johnson, Colorado: "I am glad he was so frank."

Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts: "In addition to his public utterances tonight it would have been magnanimous of Mr. Justice Black had he tendered his resignation to the President for his approval or disapproval in view of the facts now disclosed and of which the President and

"No, I have no rights. I am absolutely the interloper, the man who ate your husband's bread and then stole away his wife," Karl said in sudden bitterness. "I will despise myself for the rest of my days and you will despise yourself, too. You see, you're an old-fashioned woman, living in new-fashioned days, Gloria. In your heart you'll always belong to Peter, and Jimmy'll always belong to Peter. You'll always belong to those first days, when you loved him, gave yourself to him, bore his child. Why, even the chairs you got for wedding presents, Gloria, and the salads you invented when you were first keeping house, mean something to you! You've told me about them. If you divorced Peter and married me, d'you suppose any new associations would ever wipe them out?"

She was looking at him fixedly, her face pale, her mouth still unsteady, but her eyes like stars. "I only know that I can't live without you, Karl," she whispered. "Have you thought how it might be done?" he asked. "Could you share the child with him?"

"Oh, never," Gloria said quickly, her jaw tightening. But the grip of her fingers in his tightened too. "Oh, Karl, no," she said, almost in a tone of pleading. "He could not keep him. He would give him back to you."

"I dare not risk it!" "Would you write him and ask him what arrangement regarding the child would satisfy him? I can't suppose," Karl said dryly, "that Peter would want to take him to New York for the summer heat."

"Karl, if it has to be a choice between Jimmy and you it will have to be Jimmy," Gloria said, narrowing her eyes as she moved her gaze into the far space. "He's little, he's helpless, he loves me. He didn't ask to be born."

"And at the same time it's comparatively easy to keep a child happy," Karl suggested. "Yes, I know. But at the thought of giving him up, even for a few weeks, my heart stands still," Gloria said.

"Yes, I know," Karl said. "And yet I'm asking you to do it. If you write Peter reasonably, platingly, if you explain about—about you and me, he'll see your side of it. He'll have to. Will you do it?"

"I don't know," she whispered. "I thought I could get away before any of this was said," Karl went on. "I didn't. It's too late now. We're talking of it, you and I. We know now that we love each other. Are you brave enough to make the break, Gloria, even if it means losing your child for a while? I ask you to do it."

Karl's voice broke. He loosed her hands, twisted about so that his back was half turned toward her, knotted his fingers, and dropped them between his knees. "I know I'm inviting you to certain regret," he said in a colorless voice. "I know I'm laying up endless remorse for myself. You're not like other women, Gloria; you can't do this and sweep it behind you as if it had never been! We'll be sorry—we'll see it all differently. When the first glory of our loving each other settles down into every-day living we'll find there's no every-day living there—we'll have destroyed that—we'll have destroyed everything! And still I ask you to do it, to give him the child—for a while, to get free, to come with me into this new work. I'll be no good without you! And whatever happens, we shall have our hour. If I'm weak, if I ought to go away and say none of this, you know why. It's because I love you. I want you!"

Gloria's eyes were shining. She spoke like a woman caught up into a dream. "I think that's all I wanted to know," she whispered. There was a strange change in the sunshine. It shone not less brightly, but it was different. It shone on this enchanting April morning upon Kitty's garden, and upon Kitty's dark mop of hair, dripping and drying, and upon Gloria's thin white dress and wide-brimmed hat.

Kitty and Gloria were idling as the clocks moved on toward noon. Gloria lying in a wicker steamer chair, with her hands locked on her breast. Looking at her, Kitty thought that she was beautiful this morning, with the beauty of health and youth, of creamy smooth skin and burnished hair, of stretched young body, supple and slender, fine brown hands, fine thin ankles. And, beyond all this, Kitty knew she wore today like a royal garment a subtler beauty, the unmistakable cosmetic that glorifies only the woman who loves and knows herself beloved.

Gloria's dark-gold eyes moved about the familiar scene—the sprawling oaks, the scattered flowers of the charming, informal garden. And down the easy slope of the lawn, under the oaks and fruit trees, she could see the Golden Gate, cut on this exquisite spring morning with the white wakes of ferriboats and yachts.

It was all the same, and yet it was all different. The sunshine had a different glow; the world was made anew. Gloria tried to think of herself as the young wife who had come to this scrambled seaside town on a hillside four years earlier, before Jimmy was born. She had been a sweet, innocent, inexperienced person, that Gloria of four short years ago. It all seemed very childish and elementary, looking back. Motherhood had been still ahead, with all the tremendous changes that it brings to a woman. Still ahead also had been the scarcely less awakening discovery that she, Gloria Ruff, was a natural businesswoman, that responsibility and affairs and decisions came easily to her. She loved office detail, loved planning, changing, and developing; it had all been joy to her. It was odd to think that office work had always been so hateful to Peter, that his reports to her at night had always been discouraging, uninteresting. Any one listening to Peter must have thought that business was a dull, depressing grind.

Her own experience had been so delightfully different! From the very beginning compliments and flattery and success had heartened her upon her way. Her reports to Tony and Kitty, when Sunday

"I would all be so wonderful!" "What are you smiling about?" Kitty asked.

Gloria, almost with a sense of shock, came back to the Sausalito garden. "Thinking," she said, happiness still lingering like a light in her eyes. "Can't get used to it," Kitty ran a comb through her silky black hair. "Never shall get used to it," she said.

"Which means you and Tony don't approve Kitty, I know that," Gloria said patiently. "Well, it worries Tony," Kitty observed. "He's terribly fond of you, you know. He's always thought you were wonderful, that you couldn't do anything—well, wrong."

"Getting divorced in these days, when you happen to love another man, isn't considered exactly—wrong," Gloria offered mildly. "Just the same, it shocked Tony," Kitty said.

"I know," Gloria's tone was still meditative, undisturbed. "I've talked to Tony," she reminded her companion. "I can see Tony's side of it. I don't suppose there ever was a divorce yet that didn't distress somebody," she went on. "There's a sort of convention that one must say, 'Oh, how lovely!' when anyone gets married, and 'Oh, too bad!' when anyone gets a divorce. And yet, case for case, Gloria continued, developing the idea as she talked, "I haven't the slightest doubt that marriages have caused more actual suffering than divorces."

"Come over here! What are you girls scrapping about?" Tony had limped out to his chair; he was uncomfortably established in it, panting from pain and exertion. "Come talk to me!" he called.

Kitty ran to move his helpless legs, shift pillows, jerk up his shoulders. Gloria, dragging her chair, went to him. "We're carrying on last night's argument," she explained. "Kitty reading you the riot act?" "With sideways at the Ten Commandments," she said.

"Kitty's a moral force," Tony said. "You were just as bad as Kitty last night."

"No, I wasn't. I didn't go in for basic principles. I merely said that I loved Peter and love you, and it makes me kind of sick to think of the sort of neighbors who will probably rent 'Bide-a-Wee.'"

"You said more than that," Gloria said, in amused mild scorn. "You said tacitly that, not having seen Peter for years, having more or less washed up that whole experience, I should say to Karl—after all, one of the most important men of his generation—I'm sorry, but my dear friends, the Bagleys, feel that I ought to go on working, supporting my child and myself, refusing to share your life with you, although I love you, settling down into quiet middle age, and continuing to run my hospital boarding-house!"

"She's still mad," Tony said in an undertone to his wife. Gloria laughed. "No, I'm not mad, darlings," she said affectionately. "I'm too much on your side of the wall. My father, if he were living, all my people, would be sorry, as I say, it's the thing to be sorry. I'm sorry myself. I think it's a stupid sort of civilization that puts these breaks into one's life. I wish it were all over. I wish it were two years ago."

"What are clouds made of?" asks Ruth Anne Suelzer. Clouds are made of moist air. Millions and millions of tiny bits of moisture (each smaller than a raindrop) rise in the air and gather together. Then we see a cloud floating across the sky.

Fogs and clouds are nearly the same thing, but fogs are close to the ground while clouds are some distance above. Many clouds are less than a mile high. Others are several miles from the earth's surface.

Water is always rising in the air in one place or another. In fact, it rises in many, many places at the same time. Sunshine turns the water of oceans, lakes, ponds and so on into vapor, and the vapor rises.

Fogs are composed of moist air which is heavy enough to settle near the ground. In most cases, however, air with vapor in it is lighter than air with none of it, or so little that it does not amount to much.

It is a good thing that vapor—Solution to Yesterday's Puzzle.

TAX 'BAROMETER' SOUGHT BY RIVERS IN FIRST PARLEY

Legislative Leaders Meet With Governor Today To Map Out Program.

Tax problems—remodelling old levies and possibly creating new ones—head the list of subjects Governor Rivers today will refer to the first of a series of legislative conferences leading to the special fall general assembly.

Desiring a short and "harmonious" meeting of the assemblymen, the Governor is seeking a "barometer" of legislative sentiment in favor of extending his "little New Deal" for Georgia.

While he proposes to throw into the session only those subjects on which he finds the legislators ready and willing to act, chief among matters he desires settled are:

Antiquated System.

1. Revision of the state's tax structure: This field includes the abolishment of an "antiquated system," and the institution of a "modern tax structure," and calls for attention to methods of tax collection, tax assessments—and a "shifting of burdens" by devising new taxes for any found to be unwanted.

2. Institution of state civil service: Rivers holds an efficient administration of state affairs requires trained personnel and an abolishment of the spoils system of patronage.

3. Prison reform: Operation of the new Tattall county prison, the Governor contends, affords an opportunity for revising the present system centered in the county chain gang.

4. A $5,000,000 building program for state hospitals and training schools: The special session will be asked to set up a five-year program for revising the $1,000,000 annually to provide ample facilities for all eleemosynary institutions.

Others to Follow.

Members of the legislature from the first four senatorial districts will attend today's pre-session conference, and others will follow in small groups.

By the time the session starts on Thanksgiving Day, Rivers said, he hopes to have a definite program for presentation with fair assurance a majority of the members favor it.

They will be the same legislators who gave him practically all he asked for in the regular session this spring when he started bringing his "New Deal" to Georgia.

BUILDING PROGRAM SOUGHT BY RIVERS

Plans for a $5,000,000 building program for Georgia's eleemosynary institutions are being considered, Governor Rivers said yesterday.

The Governor said he hopes to begin the program next year, if the special session of the general assembly can find ways of financing it.

Nearly All Overcrowded. Practically every institution in the state, he said, is overcrowded and needs new buildings in order to give adequate service.

Asked if he had any special plans for financing the program, the Governor said he was hopeful the pre-session legislative conferences he will start today on tax problems "will be fruitful of plans to finance the program."

$1,000,000 a Year. He expressed a desire for a fund of $1,000,000 a year for five years, adding "but if the legislature sees fit to give anything less, I, of course, will be glad to get it for the institutions."

Richard C. Job, executive director of the State Planning Board, is undertaking a survey of the institutions to determine the extent of increased facilities needed in order to give an adequate service to the state in a long-range health program.

Rivers announced general plans for the building program at the recent meeting of the Georgia Press Association when he called on publishers to support the movement.

FIRST LADY ENDS FLIGHT TO JERSEY

Leaves F. D. R. at Seattle on Western Tour.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 1.—(P)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt arrived at Newark airport at 6:32 p. m. (Atlanta time) tonight, completing a flight from Seattle, where she left the President on his western tour.

Asked about her engagement schedule, she said the only thing definite in her plans was that she would spend the night in the Roosevelt town house in New York, and proceed, probably tomorrow, to Hyde Park, N. Y.

GENERAL KILBOURNE BECOMES V.M.I. HEAD

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 1.—(P)—Major General Charles E. Kilbourne assumed the superintendency of Virginia Military Institute today as Major General John A. Lejeune formally relinquished command during impressive ceremonies at the school.

Colonel Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, paid high tribute to the retiring superintendent, a native of Louisiana.

The transfer of command was marked by a colorful garrison review.

Campus Beauties Transfer Their Allegiance

Campus beauties of Georgia and Agnes Scott did a run-out on alma mater this fall and transferred their affections to Emory—classes if not men. Here are two strolling on their new grounds. Miss Lucile Denison, May queen at Agnes Scott last year, and Miss Jeanne Crowell, elected the most beautiful girl at the University of Georgia during last year.

When Susan Falligant transferred her affections from the Ivy-clad buildings of the University of Georgia to marble-hall Emory, the latter school's little theater, at least, gained. Susan starred in many Georgia student theater productions, the Atlanta WPA theater show this summer and tried out last spring for the role of Scarlett in the film version of "Gone With the Wind." She's taking journalism at Emory.

State Launches 3 Beauty Queens Campaign to Aid Shift 'Loves' Cancer Control To Emory Campus

A concerted drive toward cancer control—the first ever undertaken by the state in a comprehensive manner—was started yesterday by the State Health Department.

Dr. J. W. Schereschewsky, director of the United States Public Health Service, assumed control of the new cancer division of the health department to direct work for which the general assembly provided a special $500,000 fund.

Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, health director, said the new division will begin operation as soon as the official familiarization with operation of the state health agency.

His work will consist primarily of aiding public and private physicians in cancer diagnostic work and in obtaining hospitalization for indigent cancer sufferers, Dr. Abercrombie said. Aid to the needy, he related, will be provided on a co-operative basis by the state, county and city health organizations.

The director described Dr. Schereschewsky as one of the outstanding men of his profession in cancer work, and said his experience in this type medical administration had been very extensive.

M'ADOO'S DAUGHTER WILL SING FOR WPA

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—(P)—Ellen Wilson McAdoo, 22-year-old daughter of United States Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, will make her debut as a professional singer October 18 at a federal music project concert in suburban Glendale, project officials here said today.

Modest Altschuler, director of the Pasadena Symphony orchestra, invited Miss McAdoo, a lyric soprano, to appear in a benefit performance at Glendale. The amount she was to be paid was not announced.

Miss McAdoo studied voice in Paris during her two-year honeymoon with Rafael Lopez de Onate, film actor whom she divorced last spring.

Father and Daughter Meet After 42 Years

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—(P)—It was 42 years ago that Thomas Ross walked out of his Joliet, Ill., home after a domestic quarrel, leaving his wife, their baby daughter, Clara Belle, and his newborn son, Emmett.

As the years rolled by, his wife remarried, and died 12 years ago; the children left Joliet and married.

Yesterday Ross and his daughter were reunited, and today the 82-year-old father was ready to depart for Columbus, Ohio, to make his home with her. She is 44 years old and the wife of Edward Haller, soap company representative.

ENGINEERS' REPORT ACCEPTANCE HINTED

Buildings Committee Members Move To Insure Safety of Auditorium.

Acceptance of the board of inquiry's recommendation for repairs to the municipal auditorium appeared likely yesterday as Councilman John A. White, chairman of the building committee, and others sought to end confusion surrounding reports of the board and the city architects.

A controversy has raged within the buildings committee over the report of the board and that of the architects, which are diametrically opposed. The board recommended replacing steel joists, claiming the steel is defective, while the architects, John R. Dillon and Ed S. Lewis, recommended only bolting welds in the present joists.

Councilman White said last night he will move at a meeting of the buildings committee Monday preceding council to agree on the board's recommendations in order to make the auditorium absolutely safe for occupancy.

Three other members of the committee said they favored this move. Alderman Ed A. Gilliam was quoted as favoring further delay, while awaiting another part of the board's report which does not concern the auditorium roof.

81-YEAR-OLD SISTER WILL BE HONORED

Veteran Teacher To Celebrate Diamond Jubilee.

Sister Mary Elizabeth Donelan, who has taught "reading" and "writing" and "rithmetic" to more children "than I can count" during the past half century, will be given a diamond jubilee celebration today at the Immaculate Conception convent.

Exactly 80 years ago today, Sister Mary Elizabeth became a sister of mercy. Thirty years previous to that she spent as a novice.

Mass will be celebrated for her this morning at the convent chapel by the Rev. Joseph R. Smith. Altar boys and girls will be ninth-grade children whom Sister Mary Elizabeth taught in the third grade.

Sisters of the city's convents will sing for the solemn benediction which will be given at 3 o'clock by the Very Rev. Joseph E. Moylan, V. F., pastor of the new Christ the King co-cathedral.

At 4 o'clock the sister will receive visitors and friends. The 81-year-old sister retired from teaching duties three years ago, but she is still very active around the convent, serving as a hostess and looking after the domestic activities.

Twenty-seven members of the senior, junior and sophomore classes of Agnes Scott College, 11 of whom are residents of Atlanta, made the honor roll for last year, it was announced yesterday by Dr. J. R. McCain, president of the college.

This honor standing carries with it the privilege of unlimited cuts. An unusual feature of this year's list is that each of the three classes contributed an equal number to the roll.

ORDER OF COURT HALTS BEGINNING ON POWER PROJECT

South Carolina Litigation Is Set for Hearing at January Term.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Start of construction of the Santee-Cooper power and flood control project in South Carolina was delayed when the United States circuit court of appeals today granted a temporary restraining order.

The court order, entered with consent of counsel on both sides, allowed delay in start of the work provided Secretary Ickes and the PWA would not withhold a total of $74,000 from the South Carolina Public Service Authority. Of this amount $150,000 is allowed for expenses of litigation, $350,000 for obtaining an option on land and timber but not for purchase, $250,000 for engineering expenses, including field surveys, investigations and necessary temporary structures.

The Santee-Cooper project, estimated to cost $37,500,000, has been approved by the PWA.

The case will be heard during the January term of the United States circuit court of appeals, after which a decision by the supreme court is expected.

PWA WILL TRANSMIT MONEY TO AUTHORITY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Public Works Administration officials said today they would transmit to the Santee-Cooper river diversion project in South Carolina any funds which are not held up by injunction.

They said if a restraining order entered against the project by the circuit court at Richmond today allowed the transmission of $750,000, that money would be sent soon to the Carolina Authority.

The fund already is provided for in a $6,000,000 allotment made by President Roosevelt, but held up by court action.

NEW DEAL VICTORY IN 1940—COPELAND

Senator Says Only Crash, Inflation or Third Party Can Stop Administration.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(UP)—Senator Royal S. Copeland, Democrat, New York, licking deep wounds suffered in the recent New York city mayoralty primary, today said only a "terrible crash," violent inflation or the formation of a militant third party can prevent another New Deal victory in the 1940 elections.

He said that Franklin D. Roosevelt, Senator La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin, and Labor Leader John L. Lewis "in that order or in that group," are the most likely New Deal candidates in 1940 for the White House.

"A New Deal success is inevitable in 1940 unless we have a terrible crash, violent inflation or some other unforeseen upheaval," Copeland said at a press conference. "Unless these occur, the same crowd will string along with the administration."

36 STILL HELD IN JAIL AS ELBERTON PICKETS

ELBERTON, Ga., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Sheriff John A. Starke said today he was still holding 36 pickets, arrested Wednesday near the Georgia Granite Company, in jail for the lack of cash to post bonds.

He said he made out $100 bonds for 20 Wednesday with the belief that they had satisfactory bondsmen, but that the men named in the instruments for security did not sign them.

Starke said his office was open all day, every day and he would be glad to release any or all of the pickets any time they produced acceptable bondsmen.

Quiet reigned in the strike, which was called by an AFL union at the granite company's quarries and cutting sheds.

The pickets were arrested on warrants charging "obstruction, interfering with railroads and work" with men going to work."

NEGRO CONVICT DIES OF ACCIDENTAL BURNS

LAGRANGE, Ga., Oct. 1.—Charles Freeman, negro convict serving time at Throusdale county stockade following conviction of cheating and swindling, was fatally burned when flames from a roadside fire enveloped his body, apparently fed from gasoline that had been absorbed by his clothing. He died at the City-County hospital.

At work on the LaGrange-Mountville highway at the time of the accident, Freeman had served only five days of his 12 months' sentence.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Tough Ones Hurdled By Girl Speller, 14

Can you spell hieroglyphics? Or daguerreotype? Or phlegm, or apropos? Martha Bledsoe, 14-year-old Fairburn (Ga.) girl, could and by doing so she won the Atlanta and Fulton county "spelling bee" yesterday.

The participants in the contest were given 100 words to write, not spell orally. Martha spelled all the words correctly but a correction in one of her words was judged a mistake so she tied with Jane Taylor, of North Avenue Presbyterian school, of Atlanta, with 99 correct.

The two finalists were given 25 extra words and again Martha came through with a perfect score. Jane missed three.

Martha, by winning the district contest, will represent these areas in the state "bee" to be held at the Southeastern Fair next week, held under the sponsorship of The Atlanta Constitution.

She is a senior at the Campbell High school in Fairburn.

BOYCOTT ON MEAT URGED BY GOTHAM

Packing Executive Says Refusal To Buy Won't Affect Cost.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The New York City Department of Markets tonight advised all housewives to buy the cheaper cuts of meat or else substitute poultry and eggs for prime cuts until the prices come down.

Announcement of a campaign of education to this end was made by Commissioner William F. Wallace urging an abortive effort to forestall a threatened "strike" of 5,000 Kosher butcher shops against rising meat prices.

The retail shops affiliated with the Federation of Kosher Butchers and catering to 2,500,000 Jews in the metropolitan area, have announced they would refuse to reopen as usual when the Jewish sabbath ends at sundown tomorrow.

A meat boycott also was threatened by Mrs. Rose Nelson, secretary of the Progressive Women's Council, which claims a membership of 5,000. Mrs. Nelson sent a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace urging an investigation of "current allegations that large special shipments of steers and cattle have been made to Japan, creating a shortage here and causing increases in native beef prices."

From Chicago, Robert H. Cabell, president of Armour & Company, issued a statement saying, in part:

"The Kosher meat situation is no different from the meat situation in general. It is an old trick to talk boycott when prices are high, but boycotts do not increase the amount of meat available nor affect the cost of producing meat. If the Kosher dealers are well advised they will do the best they can in the circumstances and make every effort to hold their trade for the days when a more liberal supply is available."

'PROOF' TO DELAY COTTON PAYMENTS

AAA Returns Impossible Before Spring, Says Ward.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Frank C. Ward, administrative officer in charge of the AAA program in Georgia, said today farmers must wait until 1938 for their cotton price-adjustment payments. Ward said he has received a large number of letters and telegrams urging immediate payment to farmers who co-operated with the 1937 program.

"Under the act," Ward said, "congress appropriated $130,000,000 for price-adjustment payments on cotton grown in 1937. Payments at the rate established by this act may be made to growers on proof of their compliance with the 1938 agricultural adjustment program, legislation for which will be the first business of the next session of congress. Proof of compliance with the 1938 program could not be given of course before late next spring."

Ward added "participation in the 1937 program of the AAA is not required of those applying for price-adjustment payments."

Four-Day-Old Baby Center of Court Fight

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 1.—(AP)—A superior court hearing tomorrow probably will determine who is to care for three-day-old Orrie Lindy Smith, whose mother died at his birth Tuesday.

Charles M. Bryan, an uncle of the infant, yesterday asked the court for a writ of habeas corpus, contending that Mrs. M. G. Hughes is caring for the child for the father, Hoke Smith.

His petition asks that Mrs. Hughes produce the child, and that she be restrained from moving him from jurisdiction of the court.

Bryan stated in his petition that he was employed by a railroad and was able to care for the baby.

Superior Court Judge John Rourke set the hearing for Saturday.

ATLANTA COMPANY BUYS TEXTILE MILL

L. W. Robert Jr. Announces Purchase of Massachusetts Plant, Equipment.

Purchase of the Ware, Mass., plant of the Otis Company, large textile mill employing 550 persons, by the RHR Company, of Atlanta, was announced yesterday by L. W. (Chip) Robert Jr., one of the principal stockholders.

The southern company paid $50,000 for the plant and will assume active control November 8, John Skinner, treasurer of the Otis Company, said.

With announcement of the purchase, Robert said his company was contemplating the immediate installation of new equipment to replace antiquated machinery. Amount to be spent on improvements was not disclosed.

The new owners are seeking to introduce new industries to the field and to increase the number of employees and output of their plant. It was intimated that hat and fashion concerns were to open in Ware. Awning and dyeing equipment not included in the sale will be transferred to the Otis Company's Greenville, N. H., plant, Skinner said.

Associated with Robert in the RHR Company are Edward T. Heitberg, of Nashville, Tenn., and Paul A. Redmond, of Birmingham.

Woman Robbed And Slapped For Calling Cops

Mrs. Curtis Gunter, night manager of a lunchstand at 755 Cherokee avenue, S. E., was held up and then slapped "for calling the police," it was reported yesterday.

Early in the night two men entered the lunchroom and asked Mrs. Gunter to change a $5 bill. Being suspicious of them, she refused, called police and asked for additional police protection as she thought someone wanted to rob her. Radio patrolmen on the beat promised to keep a closer watch on her stand.

Later the same men returned, asked for hamburgers all the way and stuck a pistol in her back as she prepared them. They took an undetermined amount of cash from the cash register and 50 cents from Mrs. Gunter.

As they turned to leave, one slapped her on the mouth saying, "That is for calling the police."

Miss Callie Smith Weds Mr. Moore.

Miss Callie Smith and William Sherwood Moore were married September 4 in the presence of the immediate families, relatives and close friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. D. Kelly at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Gilbert on Confederate avenue.

The living room was beautifully decorated with pink roses, gladioli and snapdragons. Tall white candles amid California lilies in front of the mantel formed a background for the wedding party.

The bride, an attractive brunette, was lovely in a royal blue velvet dress. Her accessories were black and she wore a corsage of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Harriet Gilbert, the maid of honor, wore a deep red velvet dress with black accessories. Her flowers were gardenias. J. Gordon Moore acted as his brother's best man.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert entertained at an informal reception. Miss Sarah Guilfrida and Miss Eva Gilbert presided at the punch bowl. In the center of the dining room table was a three-tiered wedding cake. Candles burned at each end of the table and on the buffet was a miniature wedding scene.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore left for a wedding trip and are now residing on Westmont road.

CHAUTEMPS DRAFTS 3-POINT PROGRAM TO BOLSTER FRANC

Will Demand Unanimous
Support of Ministers on Important Questions.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Premier Camille Chautemps has drafted a three-point program to strengthen the franc, informed sources said tonight, which he will present in the form of an ultimatum to the council of ministers tomorrow.

He will demand unanimous ministerial support for his plan. If it should be denied him, it was reported he would force the resignation of the council.

A day of swift parleying between Chautemps' Radical-Socialist ministers and the Socialist followers of former Premier Leon Blum produced the program which, as described unofficially, was tinged with economic conservatism.

The three points designed to remedy the nation's recent economic ills, were said to be:

1. Abandonment of the 40-hour week, where found necessary, to increase industrial production;
2. "Surveillance," but not control, of foreign exchange to check speculation, and
3. Prohibition of sit-down strikes to increase the confidence of employers to go ahead with expanded business plan.

The franc, barometer of France's fortunes, was steady at 29.20 to the dollar but frequent recent declines, coupled with the expense of operating the stabilization fund, made the question of strengthening the currency of foremost importance.

HIGH ARAB CHIEFS JAILED BY BRITISH

Leaders To Be Deported as England Seeks To Crush
Palestine Terror.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 1.—(AP)—British authorities swept down on Arab leaders in Palestine today in a coup designed to crush the Holy Land's long months of terrorism.

Several high Arab leaders were arrested and held for deportation, probably to an island in the Red sea. The Arab higher committee, accused of being the "brains" behind recurrent waves of terrorism, was declared illegal.

Frontiers Guarded. While troops armed with machine guns guarded the frontiers and combed the cities, the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, spiritual head of all Arabs in Palestine, apparently escaped the dragnet. He was believed to be in hiding within the Mosque of Omar, holiest Moslem sanctuary in the ancient city.

The Mufti was deprived of his office as head of the Arab higher committee, which has demanded Arab supremacy in the Holy Land.

Mayor Arrested. The British drive against new outbreaks started before dawn when houses of Arab leaders were surrounded and searched. Dr. Hussein Kjalid, Jerusalem mayor, and Puaq Saba, secretary of the higher committee, were reported arrested and taken aboard the British cruiser Sussex.

The body was taken to Lindale yesterday for final rites and burial.

Chief Hornsby's 'Lunch' Mystery Solved at Last

Chief Hornsby's luncheon emporium was "found out" yesterday.

"Two meals a day are enough for anybody," Hornsby said.

THREAT IS BLAMED IN MAN'S SHOOTING

George Shewmake, of Riverside, Wounded; Assassin
Surrenders to Police.

Condition of George Shewmake, 28-year-old Riverside white man who yesterday received the full load of a double-barreled shotgun blast, was described as "poor" last night by Grady hospital attendants.

Voney Sanders, 31, employee at the Chattahoochee Brick Company, surrendered to county police shortly after the shooting, telling them he shot Shewmake as the latter advanced upon him, apparently in a jealous rage over a girl.

Shewmake advanced upon him with a knife, cursing him and threatening to kill him, Sanders told police. The altercation occurred at the home of Tom Mitchell on Carroll road near Bankhead highway.

"I was going by the house to pick up a couple of my hound dogs," Sanders said. "I was talking to Margaret Samples, Mr. Mitchell's step-daughter, when Shewmake walked up."

Sanders said that he ran when Shewmake tried to cut him but that Shewmake then cut his automobile tires. Sanders then went to his home and returned with the shotgun. When Shewmake advanced on him again, Sanders said, he fired both barrels into Shewmake, standing about 30 feet away.

Shewmake's condition early yesterday was not thought to be "serious," Sanders, who said he "hated to do it, but it was just me or him," was taken to Fulton tower on a misdemeanor charge and placed under $500 bond.

Electric Current Detects Mystery Of Birth Control

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Electrical detection of the unsolved mystery of birth control, the brief time in which a woman can become a mother, was reported today from the Yale Medical school.

The period, the medical profession has agreed, lasts from a few hours to a day or two, once a month, but when it should be expected is a matter of sharp disagreement.

The Yale electrical detection is something new in science, the third report of its kind in the last two years.

Attention, which had to be performed for other reasons, verified the telltale behavior of an electric current. The story is told today in Science, official journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, by H. S. Burr, L. K. Musselman, Dorothy S. Barton and Naomi B. Kelly, of the departments of neuro-anatomy and obstetrics and gynecology.

Sam Dunn, of Luckie Street,
Is Bound Over.

An alleged train wrecker was bound over to the Fulton grand jury yesterday in recorder's court and is being held in Fulton tower in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Sam Dunn, 45, of 220 Luckie street, is charged with throwing a switch on the Southern railroad siding at the Campbell Coal Company at Boulevard and Tenth street, causing an engine to overturn. The engineer and fireman were scalded.

He was bound over after two negroes testified seeing him near the switch shortly before the train approached. The switch lock had been opened, the switch half-opened and the lock replaced.

DETROIT, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, went east tonight for "some important conferences," after making a final admission that he had flourished a pistol when a group of union men seeking him yesterday, threatened to break in the door of his hotel suite.

The whole affair, he intimated, was more or less of a "joke."

American Flag Raised, But There's No Salute

SILVER HILL, Md., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. August Ludke and their six children raised an American flag today on a 27-foot flagstaff in front of their cottage, but did not salute it.

A year ago, the children were barred from Oxon Hill (Md.) Consolidated school because they refused to salute the flag. They contended such a ceremony conflicted with the family's religious principles.

Ludke, however, told a group that watched the ceremony today his family has the deepest respect for the flag.

The Ludke children are being instructed at home.

'Your Time Isn't My Time' in Writing Essay on Tibet To Win Grand Prizes

Piano and Camera To Be Presented Winners for Best Composition; Open to All Atlanta Students

This interior view of the lamaseri, with Ronald Colman in the foreground, is one of the most striking sets of Columbia's "Lost Horizon," directed by Frank Capra.

The deadline of the "Lost Horizon" parent-pupil essay contest is 12 midnight tonight!

But today is Saturday. No school today, just the time to write that 300-word essay which may win for you, if you are a girl, a swell swing piano, or if a boy, a deluxe kodak with carrying case.

The competition is open to any student of Atlanta schools. To the 10 best essays among the girls after the one selected as winner of the piano, go 10 pairs of passes to see the Frank Capra picture, "Lost Horizon," now playing at the Rialto. Ten more pairs go to the best entries by boys, following the same plan.

The subject of the essay is "Tibet." All compositions must be in the hands of the "Lost Horizon" editor of The Atlanta Constitution by 12 o'clock tonight, or if mailed, must bear a postmark prior to this time. Neatness will count when the essays are judged. You are allowed to obtain the help of your parents, friends or teachers and to consult any book or authority on the subject.

The judges of the "Lost Horizon" competition are Miss Jessie Hopkins, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson and Miss Lillie May Robinson. Their decision must be regarded as final. No correspondence will be entered into regarding essays, which will not be returned. No one in any way connected with The Constitution, Columbia Pictures or the Rialto theater may compete. The names of the winners and the runners-up will be published in The Constitution Tuesday morning. The prizes and passes will be delivered the same day.

"Tibet" was chosen as the subject in this popular contest because it is the setting of many of the lovely scenes and exciting sequences of the motion picture, "Lost Horizon," which is the first to be filmed with this mysterious land as a background.

Get busy right now and write your essay on "Tibet," the land of the "Lost Horizon."

ENDEAVOUR DOCKS AS 20,000 APPLAUD

Glance at Log Bares Epic of
2,700-Mile Fight With Sea.

GOSPORT, England, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The seaway yacht Endeavour I bobbed at anchor alongside her home dock tonight, safely at the end of her stormy crossing of the Atlantic under sail.

For the first time since a 105-mile gale snapped her towline off the New England coast September 13, her lofty masts were stripped of canvas and her crew could think of things other than navigation.

Some 20,000 persons turned out to pay cheering tribute to the sturdy craft and the seamen who brought her home under her own power.

A glance at the Endeavour's log showed something of what her crew went through. Being home after participating in races off New England, she had made but 234 miles when the terrific gale broke her line and left her to fight the storm alone.

Captain Ned Heard, on deck during the storm, was swept over the side of the yacht by heavy seas but was saved when he caught a loose wire and pulled himself back on deck.

His latest operation was for an abdominal ailment which doctors diagnosed as radium decomposition of his intestines.

GANDHI REPORTED ILL ON EVE OF 68TH YEAR

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Mahandas K. Gandhi, the frail little brown man who led India's millions along the turbulent road toward autonomy, is ill on the eve of his 68th birthday.

Physicians who have examined the former mahatma fear that his life is in danger. Although his blood pressure is returning to normal, it was said Gandhi recently has grown weaker. A complete rest was ordered two weeks ago. Gandhi agitated active politics in 1934, but he still is a powerful force in India's political life.

ROSS HUNT SHIFTS TO KIDNAP REGION

Federal Agents Will Join With State Police in Intense Search Today.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Investigation of the kidnapping of aged Charles S. Ross shifted to the scene of the abduction today.

Lieutenant Kelly, of the state's attorney's police, went to Sycamore, Ill., to confer with Sheriff Larson and state and federal agents redoubled their efforts to break through the shell of mystery encompassing the crime.

Ross dined in the Fargo hotel at Sycamore last Saturday evening with a former business associate, Miss Florence Freilage. During their subsequent drive toward Chicago, his expensive sedan was stopped by a car bearing a trio of snatchers and he was carried away.

The prosecutor's staff concentrated their search in the territory between Chicago and Sycamore—some 45 miles to the west—after a motorist related how he had been pursued in that area 48 hours before Ross was kidnapped.

The time needed when federal agents would be empowered to take charge of the investigation. Ross, retired manufacturer, has been missing six days. On the seventh, the government operatives will have legal authority to project their full force into the hunt.

TEACHER TO SIGN FULTON CONTRACT

Miss Marie Long Indicates
Further Action To Test
Constitutionality.

Standing on her right to question constitutionality of regulations of the Fulton County Board of Education, Miss Marie Long, teacher in the county system for 13 years, said yesterday she would sign the board's contract but maintain her right to contest any ruling.

Judge Paul S. Etheridge, denying the plea for an injunction against the school board, Thursday, held that signing of the contract does not bar a teacher from questioning legality of constitutionality of any provision.

Miss Long's request for an injunction grew out of the board's action when she signed a contract but attached a notation to the effect that where the board's rules conflicted with the state civil service law for teachers, she was not to be affected.

She specifically mentioned the board's rule against marriage of teachers.

TRUCK PLEA HEARD BY FULTON JUDGES

Seaboard Places Action
Against Commission Before
Three-Judge Court.

A three-judge court took under advisement yesterday the plea of the Seaboard Air Line Railway for a mandamus writ to compel the Public Service Commission to grant them a certificate to operate a truck line alongside its railroad tracks.

Arguments were completed yesterday before Judge John D. Humphries, Edgar E. Pomeroy and Virlyn B. Moore. The Public Service Commission recently received a certificate required in Georgia for motor carriers. The railroad planned to operate a service from Atlanta to Athens and Comer. The commission denied the request, asserting that rail and motor carrier service should be maintained on a competitive basis.

Arguing the case for the railroad were Abit Nix, of Athens, and the law firm of Arkwright & Troutman. Assistant Attorney General H. B. Duckworth and Ellis Arnall represented the state. Intervenor, competing motor truck lines, were represented by Allen Post. The three judges will study briefs on the case before announcing a decision.

Warrenton Project.

WARRENTON, Ga., Oct. 1.—(AP)—Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., speaking at the formal dedication of the new $40,000 PWA-financed gymnasium-auditorium of the Warrenton High school, said today "government spending must stop" in order that the national budget may be balanced.

The senator, principal speaker at the exercises, said he thought the New Deal's building program was justified, but added that "now it must be curtailed."

"The government PWA building program, as a whole," he said, "was justified, especially school buildings. Some waste occurred, but that is found in any such program and even in private building, but it must come to an end."

L. Hart, of Atlanta, traffic adviser of the committee.

Speaking at a meeting of manufacturers here, Hart said the committee intends to delete any items for which manufacturers of the south are unwilling to put up a fight.

GREEN EVISAGES EXPULSION OF CIO

AFL Chief Announces Federation Will Carry War
Into Rival's Camp.

DENVER, Oct. 1.—(AP)—William Green predicted today the American Federation of Labor would expel CIO unions, then start unrestricted war on the John L. Lewis rebels.

"We'll carry the war into the enemy's country where we're going to win decisive battles," the usually mild-mannered AFL president roared in a speech at the Federation building trades department convention.

Later, at a press conference, Green said the Federation probably would charter new unions to fight the CIO in the automobile, steel, rubber and glass industries. The convention itself, he explained, could not expel member unions. The executive council can expel it if it has an authorization granted by a two-thirds convention vote.
